Defence of Europe Certain — Stikker

OTTAWA (CP) — NATO Secretary-General Dirk Stikker called today for an end to talk about whether the United States will go to the defence of Western Europe should Russia launch an attack.

It is an "absolute fact" that the U.S. would respond to an attack on Europe, he told a press conference at the end of the three-day NATO ministerial conference here.

Mr. Stikker's words could be taken as an indirect comment on fears reported held by the French government that the U.S. might not go to Europe's aid if it meant all-out war with Russia and nuclear bombardment of U.S. territory.

Replying to questions regarding Cuba, Mr. Stikker said NATO consultative machinery applies to all regions in the world where danger may arise.

NATO COMMUNIQUE

Atom Force Approved

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The NATO ministerial communiqué issued today at the end of the three-day conference approves "the steps taken to organize the nuclear forces assigned or to be assigned to the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe."

As expected, the communiqué does not name these forces apart from three American Polaris missile submarines and British Bomber Command.

There is no mention in the communiqué, therefore, of assignment to the NATO nuclear force of the Canadian 200-bomber Air Division in Europe.

To placate France, the communiqué refers to the nuclear force merely as an increase in the effectiveness of the nuclear capability already at the disposal of the alliance.

The communiqué also takes note of Western disquiet over Laos and concern over Cuba. It says the Berlin threat has not disappeared and urges continuation of East-West disarmament talks. It regrets Russia has shown little interest in seeking solutions to outstanding world problems.

FOUR STEPS

Steps taken in organization of the nuclear force include:

1. Assignment of British Bomber Command and three American Polaris missile submarines to the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe.

2. Establishment by the commander on his staff of a deputy responsible to him for nuclear affairs.

3. Arrangements for broader participation by officers of NATO member countries in nuclear activities in the Allied Command, Europe, and in co-ordination of operational planning at U.S. strategic Air Command Headquarters, Omaha, Neb.

4. Fuller information to political and military national authorities.

"Ministers welcomed these measures to increase the effectiveness of the nuclear capability at the disposal of the alliance and to improve co-ordination and control of its nuclear deterrent forces," the communiqué says.

DIVISIONS FLEDGED

Canada has pledged the Air Division to the NATO nuclear command but it is not yet clear whether Canadian officers will participate in assignment of strategic targets at Omaha.

The communiqué says "ministers recognized the need to achieve a satisfactory balance between nuclear and conventional arms."

The permanent NATO council at Paris will undertake further studies of strategy, armed forces requirements and the resources available to meet them.

The communiqué says developments detrimental to the interests of Berlin and NATO have been effectively discouraged "thanks to the firm attitude maintained by the West."

Soviet troops remained in Cuba, "and the situation there, with its repercussions in the region generally, still gives cause for concern."

Ministers expressed their "disquiet" about recent events in Laos and stressed the importance of sustained efforts to obtain respect for the 1961-62 Geneva agreement.

The council reaffirmed the importance of progress toward

Hotel Talks Stalled; Strike Deadline Nears

Empress Hotel staff will go on strike at midnight unless there is a major breakthrough in stalled negotiations today.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson personally intervened this morning, holding a long meeting with Leslie Parkinson, manager of the CPR hotel.

He said he would also meet union representatives "if it proves necessary."

"I am quite prepared to speak to either side, or both sides," he said.

Mr. Peterson said he has not given up hope of an agreement. The 300 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers' Union at the hotel will strike at midnight unless:

1. Their wage dispute with management is settled;

2. Both sides agree on terms of reference for a special arbitrator to be appointed by Mr. Peterson;

3. Union members decide to postpone their strike deadline at a membership meeting at 8 p.m.

Mr. Peterson did not disclose the nature of his talk with Mr. Parkinson.

"We are doing everything possible," he said.

"We have not as yet been able to obtain any terms of

TERRORISTS HIT AIRPORT AT CARACAS

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)—Armed terrorists attacked Caracas' La Carlota Airport early today. At least one was killed in a gun duel with national guard sentries.

Police said at least four armed raiders were involved. Two of the three that escaped were believed to have been wounded. The car they used was found abandoned and riddled by bullets in eastern Caracas.

La Carlota Airport houses small planes of the U.S. Air Force and Venezuelan anti-aircraft detachment.

Kozlov Conscious

MOSCOW (UPI)—Frol Kozlov, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's heir apparent, was reported reliably today to have regained consciousness and to have recovered from partial paralysis.

The sources said there were hopes that the No. 2 man in the Soviet Communist party eventually would be restored to health. He had been stricken with a brain hemorrhage.

PROMISE: "WE'LL FINISH HIM"

Rough Insecticide Waiting for Firebug

MONTREAL (CP)—A posse of vigilantes that would put the wild west to shame is on 24-hour alert in east-end Montreal, hoping to lay hands on a firebug before police do.

The pyromaniac is blamed for 25 fires in the same 120-block area since May 6. Almost 100 families have been left homeless, and those who still have homes are out to see that they keep them.

Few pedestrians linger on the dimly-lit streets after dark, but volunteer sentries sit in window casements in every block and patrol the narrow, cobblestone alleys with dogs and baseball bats.

Yvon Gaudreau, an unemployed laborer lounging inconspicuously in his doorway on Visitation Street Thursday night, summed up the determination of the whole neighborhood.

"I've got a little present for him (the firebug) if he shows his face around here again," he said. He reached into the darkened hallway and produced a battered baseball bat.

Gaudreau said he and his wife were driven to the street at 3 a.m. Tuesday when fire swept a row of houses adjoining theirs.

The firebug apparently had used a five-gallon can of naphtha to ignite a row of wooden sheds attached to the back of the brick dwellings. Buildings in the French-speaking area are narrowly spaced, and the sheds carry fire rapidly from one to another.

"People are scared, especially for their children," he said.

"If the people catch that firebug around here, they'll finish him before the police arrive."

As he spoke, a passer-by strolled casually up to the window to report "all quiet."

The stroller, Robert Latreille, said he was taking time off from his regular job as a night-club busboy "until this is over."

"We've got about 15 cars and five or six dogs prowling around."

The volunteer canine corps boasted a varied assortment of big dogs—boxers, German shepherds and even a Dalmatian.

Boistering the volunteer watchers were city police, patrolling slowly in pairs by car and on foot, and even firemen in plainclothes.

WIRE BRIEFS

Canada Backs UN

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada intends to play its full part in keeping the United Nations in being as a world forum despite reluctance of some countries to pay their bills, Prime Minister Pearson said today.

Clarification Needed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Forest Minister J. R. Nicholson said today there is no justification for any belief that Canada is going to ask the United States to wash out the present Columbia River development treaty. The minister said in his view all the present treaty needs is some "correction and particularly clarification."

Satellite Launched

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today the launching of the 18th of its Cosmos series of unmanned satellites.

SIU Head Under Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz today accused Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union (SIU), of balking efforts to settle a U.S.-Canadian labor dispute that has attracted White House concern. Wirtz said in a telegram to Canadian Labor Minister Allan J. MacEachen that he would meet with Hall on the Great Lakes union strike "as soon as arrangements can be completed." (See page 3.)

Loomis Guard Had $2,200 When Arrested

Special to the Times

VANCOUVER—Rio de Janeiro police kidnapped Loomis guard Douglas John Brown early today and are holding him incommunicado in an attempt to send him secretly back to Canada.

The Vancouver Sun learned that Brown was arrested in a plush hotel suite at 4 a.m. Rio time, after a brief filing in Brazil's international playground.

He is being held secretly in an attempt to circumvent the law of habeas corpus until he can be placed aboard a United States-bound plane.

Rio Police Chief Gustavo Borgus said the kidnapping was arranged in telephone conversations with Vancouver Det. Sgt. Bill Porteous.

He said Brown surrendered quietly.

Borgus said in a long-distance telephone interview that Brown has claimed under questioning that he left most of his $325,000 loot from the Loomis Armored Co. in a cache in Canada.

"He had only a very small amount—about $200—when he was arrested," he said.

"He said he left most of the money behind—but that is all he has told us. He is being very tight-lipped."

The chief said Brown's luggage—three large suitcases—disclosed another $2,000 when opened.

(Bank officials in Vancouver estimated earlier that Brown's loot—most of it in small bills—would fill about three suitcases.)

Brown was sleeping in his suite in the swank Miramar Hotel beside Rio's famed Copacabana Beach when officers burst in on him.

"We asked him to come with us and he gave us no trouble," Borgus said.

The chief said the arrest was made in the early hours of the morning to keep it secret.

"It is mostly a favor we are doing them," he said.

"There is no extradition treaty between Canada and Brazil but we may have an accident and push him back on a plane."

"We are doing our best to send him back."

Usual Technique for Undesirables

Chief Borgus said the kidnapping technique is the usual method used by Brazilian police to get what he called "undesirables out of the country."

"We managed to send back some criminals but many of them manage to stay by getting a lawyer and a court order," he said.

"Those are the fellows who get hold of a lawyer before we have time to put them on a plane. The trick is to get them out before they have time to make any friends who might help them."

But the chief said Brown could still slip through his hands before he is put aboard because of this country's pegged dollar.

The government would try to keep it that way.

Here to officiate at Saturday's commissioning of Canada's latest destroyer-escort, HMCS Yukon, the minister also said he had hopes that President Kennedy's free trade policy would soon see an end to agitation by U.S. forest industry spokesmen for a curb on Canada's lumber exports to that country.

As for his department, it would concern itself with research, with co-ordination between the industry in various provinces and with seeking new markets.

Mr. Nicholson said heavy emphasis is going to be put into the research field through Canada's various forest research laboratories. The search for a new building in Saanich is being turned this week.

Dief Irked; MPs in Dark On NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker protested in the Commons today that Canadian government attitudes on questions before the current NATO ministerial meeting are being denied to Parliament but given to the press.

Since the NATO meeting began Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker said, Parliament has received no information on the stand taken by the government on an Atlantic alliance nuclear force.

"I'm informed the press is regularly being given information by the external affairs minister (Paul Martin) and the defence minister (Paul Hellyer) and this information is not made available to Parliament," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

This was a derogation of the rights of Parliament. "Controlled news is something that should not exist as against Parliament."

Pope Shows Improvement

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John's health continued to show improvement today and he did a bit of work before beginning a nine-day spiritual retreat, Vatican officials said.

The officials said the condition of the 81-year-old Roman Catholic ruler was satisfactory and that he clearly was showing a steady gain of energy.

But the officials avoided speaking of a complete recovery. It was clear that there still was concern that he might suffer a relapse again.

PRIMATE:

Reconsider A-Arms Decision

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most Rev. H. H. Clark, primate of the Anglican Church in Canada, has urged Prime Minister Pearson to reconsider "certain moral factors" with relation to nuclear arms.

Archbishop Clark today released a statement on nuclear arms sent to the prime minister. It reads in part:

"The government has successfully met the challenge of a vote in Parliament on its nuclear policy. Despite this fact, I have been led to send to the prime minister a statement which was prepared before that vote. For the tangle of political, economic and military factors which I hope that the government, despite its commitments, will reconsider.

"I am convinced that there is no moral justification for any plan to use atomic weapons, however limited, as an answer to an attack with conventional weapons.

"If this is NATO policy, I would urge our government to insist upon revision. I repeat what I said in January, that the nation which is the first to use atomic weapons, tactical or strategic, will face a grave charge at the bar of history.

WOULD LESSEN RISK
"Canada's two aims of world peace and reasonable defence can still best be served if our armed forces are equipped with conventional weapons only. The great need is to lessen the chances of the use of nuclear weapons in war by any nation.

"Therefore, NATO should strive to keep down the number of nations so armed. I would add, after the vote in Parliament, that published suggestions that Canada's forces should now be part of a strategic force show how slippery is the slope down which we start with our first nuclear commitment."

HOTEL

Both sides in the dispute today sat back and waited for the labor department to come up with agreeable terms.

CPR public relations man Ed MacPherson said the hotel has lined up enough new staff to carry on normal business if there is a strike.

There have been 390 applications for 32 types of jobs advertised by the hotel this week. All applicants are from the Victoria area, Mr. MacPherson said.

In addition 60 supervisory staff have been called in from several other CPR hotels, though none of them are from Vancouver.

The strike, originally scheduled for midnight Wednesday, was given a 48-hour hoist by the CBRT when the labor department offered to appoint an arbiter.

However, his terms of reference must be worked out before he is named.

NO CHANGE

James Grealy, general chairman of the union, said he has suggested the terms of reference, but there has been no word from management.

"I'm sitting here twiddling my thumbs," he said.

"There is really no change at present."

He said he will report on possible later developments to the meeting tonight.

"The government is giving us the best of service; they're doing their best," he added. "I appreciate Mr. Peterson's efforts on our behalf."

Conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin and deputy labor minister W. H. Sands have also talked to the disputants, but there has been no face-to-face union-management meeting.

If the terms of reference can be set and an arbiter appointed it is expected his decision will be binding and there will be no walkout.

The union voted 94 per cent to strike after conciliation broke down.

It accepted as "a nucleus" of settlement a conciliation award of seven cents an hour over three years.

But the CPR rejected it. Its only offer has been five cents over three years for some classifications.

Staff of One in Old Barber Shop Recalled by Royal Trust Veteran

By GORDON BELL

A man whose active business recollection of Victoria dates back to the days before the First World War returned today to take part in the 50th anniversary celebration of the opening of the Royal Trust Company office here.

Arthur M. J. English, now 85, and retired in Vancouver, was the manager of the office when it first opened in a former barber shop below street level in the Law Chambers on Bastion Street.

Mr. English had one stenographer as office staff and his office equipment was a couple of desks and chairs.

He contrasted this beginning with the Royal Trust's present quarters on Government Street in a building purchased several years ago and staffed by a total of 62 persons.

Mr. English recalled that he first arrived in Victoria from England on Jan. 1, 1913, in time to read Premier Sir Rich-

ROOM DAYS

Everyone was talking "boom" in those days, he said, and two more railways were to be built to serve the Saanich Peninsula in addition to the one already in operation.

Unfortunately, the "boom" followed later that same year and the railways all disappeared, later to become highway right-of-ways.

Also, on the day he arrived, Mr. English read in the newspapers of the "Titanic struggle on ice at Arena" which told of the approaching clash between Lester Patrick, at point, and his teammates, and brother Frank, also at point, with his team from Vancouver.

THE BIG SNOW

A later recollection was the "great snowfall" of 1916 when almost four feet of snow hit the area.

Despite the weather, it was "business as usual" for Mr. English who walked to work from his Oak Bay home as he did every other day of the year, only to discover that he was one of the very few who made it downtown to work at all.

"My wife and I greatly enjoyed the years we spent in Victoria," he said. "There was a general friendliness which gives one great pleasure to recall."

GAVE CHARACTER

"The great event of the year was, of course, the opening of Parliament and this, together with Government House, gave the city 'character.' When the House met the whole city regarded it as something like a gala day."

Mr. English left Victoria in August of 1916 to manage the Vancouver branch of the Royal Trust until he retired in 1946.

a plane and sent home to face trial.

"It is almost impossible to keep a thing like this a secret for very long," he said.

"If the word gets out that we have him a lawyer might come down to see him. I have to allow that."

"He might have talked with a lawyer before he was arrested and he could produce a writ of habeas corpus at any time. We are doing our best but there is always that chance."

Borgus said his department first learned that Brown was in Rio when the Sun telephoned him Thursday.

He said Vancouver police contacted him after that.

Borgus said his men began shadowing Brown Thursday immediately after the Sun called him.

"He spent a very quiet night," he said. "He went for a stroll along the beach and went to bed quite early."

... NATO

It expressed the hope that the Moscow-Washington "hot line" would lead to genuine progress on key disarmament questions.

The ministers determined to make further improvements in political consultation, which must be as prompt and effective as possible.

The communique concludes by saying that NATO deplors the necessity of having to divert resources into the military field at the expense of raising living standards in developing countries.

"But the free world remains faced with a continued threat and the members of the North Atlantic alliance have both the right and the duty to protect their freedom and independence."

Liberals Win Second Test

By ARCH MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — The fledgling minority Liberal government easily survived its second test of strength within two days Thursday night when the Commons rejected a Progressive Conservative motion of non-confidence 147 votes to 76.

Only the Conservatives voted against the government this time, in contrast to Tuesday night when the government managed a 11-vote margin on the issue of its decision to accept nuclear warheads on Canadian soil.

But both the Social Credit and New Democratic parties lined up behind Prime Minister Pearson's government Thursday night.

Tuesday, the Liberal administration had survived what most observers felt was its stiffest non-confidence test on the foreseeable future, a vote that could have forced a fifth election within six years.

The government won then on the strength of support from two Conservatives and the four Western Social Credit members plus the absence of 11 Conservatives, a Social Creditor and one NDP member. Nine of its own MPs did not vote for various reasons.

FIVE WERE PAIRED

Calculations were academic Thursday night in view of the one-sided result but 10 Liberals and Conservatives were sidelined by the device of "pairing"—an absent member arranging with an opponent to abstain.

"Paired" were three Liberals and two Conservatives.

The issue was Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's motion that:

"While recognizing that Canada's economic growth during the year 1962 exceeded that of any country in the Western world, this House regrets that many of the pledges made by the prime minister and his colleagues have not been incorporated in the government's declaration of (legislative) intention as outlined in the speech from the throne, and further regrets that the policies announced fail to provide full opportunity for the people of Canada to continue the social advance and large economic growth of the past year."

Tuesday night's nuclear vote had been called on a New Democrat motion. The Social Credit party refrained from any non-confidence vote in the throne speech debate.

In the Commons Thursday some of the rank-and-file MPs hardened back to Tuesday's events.

SUPPORTED MOTION

Jack Bigg (PC-Athabasca) said he supported the New Democrat motion against nuclear arms although he favored Canada acquiring them.

In other Commons developments, Trade Minister Sharp promised constant consultation with the United States government about orderly wheat sales, following American farmer rejection of more wheat production and marketing control.

He said a Canadian trade mission will meet Communist Chinese in Hong Kong early next month.

Justice Minister Chevrier said Canadian sugar prices have risen less than world levels in the recent surge upward.

Pact for Tariff Talks Was 'By No Means Easy'

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp said today that the agreement on ground rules for international tariff negotiations, reached at the GATT meeting in Geneva ended Tuesday, was "a tremendous and heartening experience."

In a report to the Commons on the talks, he underlined the special provision made for countries such as Canada which wouldn't necessarily have to follow the U.S.-proposed pattern of across-the-board tariff cuts in next year's negotiations.

Mr. Sharp announced that in preparation for the GATT negotiations, "the government will wish to consult fully with all Canadian interests which may be affected." Arrangements for this consultation would be announced "in due course."

The trade minister, who headed the Canadian delegation at Geneva, said the agreement reached there was "by no means easy" and cautioned that success of next year's negotiations is not yet assured.

"Much remains to be done and many difficulties overcome before there can be confidence that the various negotiations will yield a substantial and positive result."

"The stage has however been set for further progress if there is real willingness to make the negotiations a success. We propose to play a full and active part."

The GATT negotiations, to start next May 4, will be based—with some exceptions—on the United States offer to bargain for matching tariff cuts of up to 50 per cent across-the-board on wide groups of trade goods.

Mr. Sharp said he told the Geneva conference that such a formula would not give Canada "the necessary mutuality of trade and economic benefits."

He was referring to the Canadian argument that Canada, with a heavy trade dependence on agricultural and raw material exports and an industry not as strong as that of the major industrial powers, would suffer from across-the-board tariff cuts.

Mike Asks U.S. to Stop SIU Threat to Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has asked the U.S. government—again—to use influence to stop union harassment of Canadian ships operating into American ports on the Great Lakes.

At a special meeting Thursday night, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk told Mr. Pearson he will take up the matter with Washington immediately.

The Pearson-Rusk talks on the Lakes dispute were held against the backdrop of worsening relations between the Canadian Labor Congress and the Seafarers' International Union of North America.

SIU President Paul Hall upset peace talks by vowing to support Hal C. Banks of the Canadian SIU "to the hilt" and to continue to try to tie up ships with crews of the rival Canadian Maritime Union.

Meanwhile, the CLC reminded the government it may be forced by the U.S. harassment to take retaliatory action—a boycott of American ships in Canadian ports and in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The CLC used this power play last year to force a federal investigation of the SIU and Great Lakes labor troubles.

PROVOKES MEETINGS

The Hall statement, made in an interview with The Canadian Press in Washington, provoked meetings Thursday of CLC President Claude Jodoin, Labor Minister Allan Maccachren and Prime Minister Pearson.

It was followed up by Mr. Pearson and Mr. Maccachren in their hurriedly arranged "chat" with Mr. Rusk at the prime minister's residence. Mr. Rusk is in Ottawa for the NATO ministerial council meeting.

Mr. Pearson said the Hall statement did not reflect a desire to work out a solution to the dispute.

The long-festering dispute was raised at the Hyannis Port meeting of Prime Minister Pearson and President Kennedy, at Ottawa discussions between Labor Minister Maccachren and U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz, followed by Washington talks involving the two labor ministers, CLC Pres-

Automation Topic Of Monday Speech

Principal of the new B.C. Institute of Technology in Burnaby will address a meeting of the Victoria Chapter of the Society of Architectural and Engineering Technologists on Monday.

Title of E. C. Roper's speech is Economic and Social Implications of Automation and Technological Change in Educational and Training Facilities.

Mr. Roper will also present certificates to two members of the Victoria chapter, Doug Chorlton and Myron Sambad.

Monday night's meeting, the last until September, will be held in B.C. Hydro Building or Pandora at 8 p.m.

ident Jodoin and AFL-CIO President George Meany. Mr. Jodoin and Mr. Meany then took the matter up with Mr. Hall at a secret session in Washington Wednesday.

HOPE IS SHATTERED

Up to that point, there appeared to be some hope that a peace plan could be worked out to end SIU harassment of CMU-manned ships in the fleet of Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto.

Then Mr. Hall shattered this possibility with his promise to keep trying to tie up Upper Lakes ships in U.S. ports. He also said the CLC executive was made up, for the most part, of "scabs."

He accused the top brass of the 1,050,000-member CLC of siding with Upper Lakes in a "fix" against the SIU.

"The CLC has never been in cahoots with a company," said Mr. Jodoin, denying the charges of Mr. Hall, who is also an executive vice-president of the AFL-CIO.

Mr. Jodoin said harassment of Canadian ships "must be stopped."

The CLC claims Mr. Banks runs the 15,000-member Canadian SIU as a "hoodlum empire" and wants it outlawed from Canada.

Steeper Steps to University

DR. JOHN B. MACDONALD has called a 30 per cent failure rate in university too high, says it should not be more than 15 per cent and gives notice that the University of British Columbia has had to raise its admittance standards.

This trend will be emphasized in 1964 when U.B.C., which decided last year to exclude candidates with supplements in Grade 12, insists on a 60 per cent average or better. Dr. Macdonald also suggests that high school courses be made stiffer so that those who aspire to university entrance will be subjected to more rigorous preparation.

Action taken by the University of British Columbia automatically has its impact on Victoria, where the College will carry the formal name of a university this summer.

To date Victoria College has been more lenient than Point Grey in accepting candidates for first year courses. It permitted those with supplements from Grade 12 to apply for admission last year and, in some cases where the students' histories were not too unfavorable, permitted them to enrol.

It could well afford to take such action on a practical basis because it knew the college year just completed would be the last during which supplements would be held. No unbreakable precedent was being established.

By 1964, however, it will have to decide whether or not it will follow the University of British Columbia's lead by insisting on 60 per cent or better grades for new admissions. Thought is already being given to the issue and when the new Victoria university senate is created action will doubtless follow.

It seems inevitable, if Victoria is to retain the high standards the College has maintained during its long history. Without standards of admission approximately equivalent to those of Point Grey, the university here could become the refuge for students not good enough, on the basis of examinations, to get into U.B.C.

The situation now emerging draws attention to another system by which students could be selected for entry into each university—or to any other profession or trade which now demands university entrance pass standards as a minimum requirement. That system involves the setting of its own entry examinations by the university or the profession which has previously accepted university entrance as its basic minimum.

Each institution of higher education, profession or trade could then decide for itself what it wanted in proof of competency from those seeking admission. The requirements would be specifically related to the needs of the candidates for entry and they would have to show neither more nor less ability than was necessary to proceed to their chosen fields.

The labels at present attached to high school courses—general or university entrance—could then be dropped. The high school students could be grouped according to ability but all would have the opportunity to sit for passing examinations after Grade 12 and then proceed to prove, by entry tests, their capacities for the specialized or advanced courses they want.

Sweet Tooth—and Claws

CANADIAN HOUSEWIVES, concerned about the rising price of sugar, will receive only partial satisfaction from government assurances that the price increase appears to be a legitimate one resulting from crop shortages in Europe and Cuba.

The situation appears to be a simple example of the law of supply and demand. Decreased production due to bad weather and other factors, plus increased demand from both old established consumer countries and new nations seeking a sweeter life, have pushed the price of raw beet and cane sugar to new highs. This has been passed along the line by refiners and retailers to the consumer.

There may have been some stockpiling too, say market experts. This could result in a rapid price decline once a turning point is reached. There may be some comfort in the assurance that sugar prices in Canada have not risen as quickly as in most other countries. One exception is the United States, where contractual arrangements have delayed, but will not stop, a price increase. Present U.S. supplies are said to be adequate but new imports are at higher prices.

Federal combines investigation authorities will continue to keep sugar prices under surveillance. Justice Minister Chevrier has told Parliament, to ensure that competition will remain effective and bring prices down as soon as increased supplies permit it. Meanwhile a rush to hoard will not only make the supply situation worse but accentuate the rising cost.

A Friend In Need, If Needed

MR. KHRUSHCHEV HAS ISSUED a stern warning to all nations to keep their aggressive hands off Cuba or precipitate "a world crisis of greater seriousness than the one last year."

This is not a new warning. It was issued to the United States following the Cuban settlement which saw Soviet missiles removed from the island. It appears to be re-issued at this time for two reasons. (It is assumed that Mr. Khrushchev does not take seriously the occasional "send the Marines" cries heard in parts of the United States.) First, Premier Castro is making a triumphant visit to Russia and Mr. Khrushchev has been at pains to do him honor at every opportunity. The visitor had a place of honor at the May Day parade in Red Square, he has been praised and feted on every hand.

It is natural, therefore, that Mr. Khrushchev should warn the West that he will allow no military attacks on his great friend and ally. It costs nothing to say and it is not likely ever to be tested by armed invasion of Cuba. But it demonstrates a great alliance between Cuba and Russia and is obviously designed to placate the Cuban leader. Premier Castro had been in a most recalcitrant mood since the missiles disappeared so quickly after the United States' protest, and had also been on record with some very friendly remarks about Red China, whose feud with Moscow continues.

Secondly, Mr. Khrushchev's current interpretation of Lenin's doctrines sees economic and industrial rivalry as the proper Communist means of fighting capitalism in a nuclear world. His placating gestures toward the West have brought upon him the censure of the might-is-right Peking philosophers as well as opposition within his own Kremlin. Such loud and aggressive warnings as that issued this week, therefore, may be construed as one means by which Mr. Khrushchev can show his teeth and demonstrate to Communists as well as to capitalists that he is not becoming soft in his cold war attitude.

As for Premier Castro, he has his guarantee from the top-most authority, and can return to Cuba in triumph.

Our Loss, Ghana's Gain

IT IS AN INDEX OF THE HIGH calibre of the Capital Region Planning Board staff that its assistant director, Mr. Darshan Johal, has been invited by the United Nations to carry on his specialized work in Ghana.

Men are not chosen for such posts unless they possess ability and qualifications. Mr. Johal, as his work with the local board has proved for the last three and one-half years, is equipped for his new responsibilities.

The fact that our specialists are chosen for such appointments should impress upon local administrations—if it is necessary to emphasize the point to them—that the advice they have received on development matters in this region comes from people of high competence.

Reeve George Murdoch, as chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board, no doubt speaks for the community when he expresses regret over the loss of an able official, but balances that regret with good wishes for Mr. Johal's success in the new task he will be undertaking—a job which will broaden his opportunities as a planner.

"Never mind the expense . . . a dozen sugar cubes . . . the best you have . . . and gift-wrap them . . .!"

Thorough Look at Canada's Defence

THE day may come when it is possible to lay down our arms and devote the enormous human and material effort now expended on armaments to more constructive purposes at home and in expanding our assistance to less favored peoples abroad. But for the present there is no alternative, in honor or common sense, to maintaining armed forces which are as efficient, effective and economical as we can make them. Canada cannot remain neutral.

Few steps to be taken by the new government offer greater opportunity for reform than Prime Minister Pearson's undertaking to establish a committee on defence early in the current session of Parliament.

The department of national defence is the largest employer in the federal government. In the armed forces alone there are more than 125,000 men in uniform, the largest number in the nation's peacetime history, and the department employs another 50,000 civilians. Taken together these two groups comprise more than half of the total number of people in the federal public service.

Defence costs the nation $1.6 billion a year or about one-quarter of total federal expenditures. Excluding statutory grants, payments to provinces and service charges on the national debt, defence expenditures account for more than 40 per cent of the federal budget.

The defence department manages some six million acres of land and occupies 140 million square feet of floor space, the latter about 80 per cent of all space owned or leased by the federal government.

Of Ottawa's total expenditures and maintenance—charges on equipment—everything from paper clips and typewriters to tanks and airplanes—the department spends $7 per cent; for every $100 spent on superannuation benefits to public servants, $48 goes to retired military personnel (not including payments to veterans of past wars).

The new parliamentary defence committee would be performing a useful national service if it did nothing but examine the uses to which this vast investment in men, money and resources is being paid. It could spend a great deal of time delving into such thorny problems as nuclear weapons, the strategic value of the Bomarc, the role of the RCAF and the army in NATO, the navy's anti-submarine capability, and so on.

Important as such matters are, however, they are but bits and pieces of the total picture which the committee must consider. More fundamental questions must first be answered before decisions can be made on weapons, tactics or even over-all strategy.

What are Canada's specific commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and to the North American Air Defence system? What are our military obligations, actual and potential, to the United Nations? What would be the military implications, if any, of our joining the Organization of American States? Is it in the national interest that Canadian soldiers and airmen should remain in Europe or can we make a greater contribution to NATO in some other way? Are we playing an effective role in the defence of our own continent? Should we have mobile airborne forces available for United Nations service?

Some of these questions involve matters which are too complex for decision by a parliamentary committee and will call for some fundamental decisions by the new government. But the committee's task is to come up with recommendations for the first major structural overhaul of the armed forces since the war. If it is to succeed it must begin by finding out what the main objectives of our defence policy are.

Once it has completed this essential first phase of its study the committee can proceed in logical sequence through the structural and technical details of our present defence arrangements.

FROM WASHINGTON

The Struggle Goes On With Mounting Fury

AFTER long manoeuvring, the Soviets and the Chinese Communists have at last jointly scheduled a meeting to discuss their differences—in Moscow on July 5.

In the same issue of Pravda announcing that a date for a meeting had finally been agreed upon, great prominence was given to a French Communist statement that "dogmatism"—meaning the Chinese heresy—was now the prime danger to the world Communist movement. That reveals the Soviet leadership's approach to the July meeting.

So much has been generally noticed. Far too little attention has been given, however, to an astounding speech starkly revealing the real nature of the current stage in the Sino-Soviet dispute. It was made in Hanoi, by Liu Shao-Chi, the second man of the Chinese Communist party, at the close of his recent Southeast Asian tour.

There were two notable features of this speech. Liu boldly restored Stalin to his former niche as "the great continuer of Lenin," from which Nikita S. Khrushchev has rudely pushed the dead dictator. Liu repeatedly spoke of "Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin" as a quadrumvirate of equals, who ought to be the true guides of world communism.

Blunt Warning

More important still, however, was Liu's blunt warning to the unfortunate North Vietnamese, who have been trying to fence-sit, and thus to stay friends with both the Soviets and the Chinese.

Communists in the midst of their bitter quarrel.

"Modern revisionism," said Liu Shao-chi, meaning no one else but Khrushchev and his supporters, while donning a cloak of Marxism-Leninism, are actually wantonly adulterating Marxism-Leninism, emasculating Marxism-Leninism in its revolutionary soul . . . substituting hypocritical bourgeois 'supra-class' viewpoints for Marxist-Leninist viewpoints . . . and substituting bourgeois pragmatism for dialectical materialism."

In Communist terms, this is about on a par with the sort of thing the Church Fathers said about the Arians, the Monophysites, the Gnostics, and the Nestorians before these wicked heretics were hurled into outer darkness.

"The destiny of the world," declared Liu, would therefore depend on the outcome of the struggle against "the modern revisionists." And he went on pointedly: "(In) such an important struggle of principle, we cannot act as onlookers or follow a middle course."

Plain Terms

In short, the North Vietnamese were told, in plain terms, that they had better climb down off the fence without another minute of delay. Whether they will do so still remains to be seen. Meanwhile, Liu's speech rather forthrightly tells us that even before the Moscow meeting the Chinese and Soviets are waging a life and death struggle for control of other Communist parties.

In this struggle, the Chinese have already won fairly dramatic successes. All the Asian parties are off the fence and on the Chinese side, except for the North Vietnamese party, which has been leaning Chinese, and the Indian party, whose pro-Chinese leaders have been quietly locked up by Jawaharlal Nehru, on the suggestion, it is reported, of the local pro-Soviet Communists.

The Japanese party, in which the pro-Chinese group has a majority, is perhaps the biggest prize the Chinese have won. But there are others. The Communists of New Zealand, somewhat surprisingly, have preferred Peking to Moscow. In the Canadian party, there is at least enough dissent to result in a recent mission to Peking, and the same is true of the Brazilian party.

Fight Continues

Even in Western Europe, the Soviets have run into trouble here and there. In the Norwegian party, for instance, the pro-Chinese group was nearly strong enough to take over, and a fight for control is still continuing.

In the satellite area, too, the Soviets' row with the Chinese is strengthening the impulses to independence felt by the local leadership. The Roumanian party leaders, for instance, have boldly and obstinately rejected Moscow's view about joint economic planning for the member-nations of the Soviet bloc.

In the Hanoi speech, Liu further spoke of the "struggle against revisionism" as necessarily "protracted and complicated . . . involving many twists and turns." A major turning point has already passed, for the Chinese, having seriously hoped to topple Khrushchev from his leadership of the Soviet party, have almost certainly had to give up on this point.

But if the leadership of both sides remains the same, the struggle can only go on, with mounting fury; and this outlook is highly unlikely to be altered by the Moscow meeting.

Ugly Implications

By MAX FREEDMAN

GOVERNOR GEORGE C. WALLACE of Alabama has every right to ask the Supreme Court to consider his complaint that President Kennedy has violated the constitution by moving federal troops into positions near Birmingham without a previous request from the governor or the legislature. The legal merits of Governor Wallace's action are open to the gravest doubt but that issue can safely be left to the judgment of the Supreme Court without advice from commentators in the press.

Freedman

It is proper and appropriate, however, to examine the background of Governor Wallace's objections. To what exactly is he objecting? The answer carries ugly implications.

The federal troops are not yet on duty in Birmingham. They were brought near the city only when Birmingham was ravaged by riots that threatened a complete collapse of law and order.

It may be argued that the authorities in Alabama would have been able to subdue the threat of renewed rioting by an even greater use of police dogs and fire hoses and organized violence. But many people will prefer to believe that it was the precautionary moves of the federal government that prevented more dangerous riots which would have ravaged the city and left a hideous legacy of bloodshed and death.

We will never know the definite answer—if Birmingham and Alabama do their duty without methods of brutality that outrage the conscience of America. If that happens, what is left of the practical issue? Very little. The federal troops will be removed, the city will settle back into its uneasy peace, and the controversy in Birmingham will continue to smoulder without riots and without reprisals.

Natural Assumption

We have the right to assume, until there is no escape from the weight of contrary evidence, that Governor Wallace wants to preserve order without resort to methods that defile the traditions of freedom. If that assumption is correct, then we must conclude that Governor Wallace places the avoidance of bloodshed among his primary objectives.

But we reach a totally different conclusion if we are forced to believe that his motives are less innocent. The crisis in Birmingham has not yet passed. Is it a contribution to moderation, or an incitement to extremism, for the governor to choose this particular moment to challenge the President and seek to discredit the powers of the federal government?

We cannot forget that the turmoil in Birmingham has been caused by a quarrel over personal segregation in stores and housing and employment. The more formidable problem of public segregation in school and university is soon to face us. Governor Wallace has pledged his defiant and unrepentant resistance to desegregation in the educational system.

It is not unknown in political experience that a governor tormented with his predicament looks for a scapegoat whom he can blame for all the troubles. Is that why Governor Wallace has embarked upon this reckless campaign against the federal government? The next few weeks will give us the answer but they will be awaited with anxiety.

Provocative Action

For his astonishing and provocative action in asking the Supreme Court to tear the 14th Amendment out of the Constitution is hardly the act of a man thinking first and always of law and order.

Charles L. Black Jr., Professor of Jurisprudence at Yale University, has a passage in one of his essays that is relevant to our present discontents. "The white people of the South," said Professor Black, "are possessed of the same delusions as anybody else, outside the roped-off area of racism, and they are going to be uneasy about all this. Parenthetically, as a Southerner born and raised, I think this inevitable revulsion is going to be an important factor in hastening the demise of the caste system. I think thousands of Southern white people are going to refuse in the end to countenance the fraud and violence that will be necessary to maintain segregation as an illegal system, however much they might have favored it so long as it had the color of law."

Perhaps this gives us the key to Governor Wallace's conduct. He may be trying to prolong the existence of segregation by appealing to spurious law and false doctrine. But he will deceive himself, and lead the people of Alabama into needless misery, if he thinks that segregation sanctions disorder and prevents the federal government from carrying out its mandate under the Constitution.

A New National Flag

The urgency for a new flag for Canada may have been seen in the poor display on our recent holiday parades.

The apathy of the people to display the British flag, the Union Jack, which is a symbol of our colonial days or to respond to the Red Ensign truly demonstrates that a new flag of national design is essential.

Anyone will admit that a fine display of flags and pennants flown from our public buildings, business blocks or private homes creates a holiday spirit. Hundreds of flags in the hands of the populace, especially children along the parade route, promotes the enthusiasm and a gracious welcome to our visitors.

It is very embarrassing to young Canadians and to new Canadians and our neighboring visitors to note the lack of enthusiasm on our national holidays. So let's have a real Canadian flag which everyone will be proud to own, to fly and to wave.

No 'Proper Respect'

Today, with all the ballyhoo about Christian unity, we like to think of religious persecution as belonging to the distant past; that it is something civilization has outgrown.

From the land of Italy, however, come press reports stating that Pasolini, producer of the film "La Rieotta" has been convicted of not showing proper respect for the Papist church. The prosecutor asked for a one-year jail sentence, but lucky Pasolini got only a four-month one.

We, in North America, better notice how the Church quells free speech and free action in countries like Italy where it dominates the political scene. Recent visitors to Spain say it is even worse there.

The Church that has been apologizing for centuries for its stupidity in convicting the great scientist Galileo for heresy, and for burning Bruno at the stake, has not learned its lesson and is still using its great wealth and power to control the thinking and the very lives, of its people.

HAROLD V. O'REILLY.

The Aborigines Are Dwindling

AS I have heard the story, when Pat was a little girl the family—father, mother, children, dog and cat—boarded the E & N on the first or second day of the school summer holiday and travelled to Shawnigan to stay there until Labor Day.

All but "Pop," that is, He commuted on a special train that left the lake Sunday night to take wage-earners to Victoria for their working week and brought them back in the evening in time for dinner Saturday.

The family left the train at Cliffside and struggled down the trail with bags, boxes, baggage and sundry supplies. When they reached the cottage, all their good, school clothes were stowed away, a box for each child, and they donned newly bought summer dresses or dungarees and cotton sweaters, received their new running shoes and new bathing suits and were set for the vacation.

If one of them dangled his or her feet over the bow of the rowboat in deep water and dropped a shoe off—as Pat, who had a penchant for such things, did—that was too bad. But small feet grew tough anyhow, even when wild blackberrying, and stubbed toes and small thorns were part of the routine.

Each had specific chores. There was water to be carried in buckets, wood to collect, stones to pack for a wall, dirt to shift for a flower bed above the shore gravel, and, for the older girls, household duties as well as small sisters to mind.

The days were full, swimming, hiking, berry picking, exploring, rowing a boat, making lemonade, maybe fishing to supplement the groceries "Pop" brought in with him each weekend, and trips to the store or the nearby farm for milk.

When dark fell, there were stories to be told, tales of ghosts and goblins so graphic to young minds that an elder had to walk small children of neighbors home through the woods to protect them from the spirits.

Coal oil lamps were lit and carried to the cottage verandah where small ones were put to bed early.

Sunbaked afternoons echoed with the shouts of children at play, swimming and more swimming, bee stings, mosquitoes, the games of small ones with big imaginations, staple food, the metallic monotone of cicadas, the chattering of squirrels, and scolding of jays.

You needed a well for cold water when the lake grew warm, and also to provide storage for perishables. Butter and bottles of milk were put in buckets and hung by cords from the well casing. You gathered scented leaves, tied them with string and hung them hopefully from the privy roof.

It was a simple life, a healthy life—and once at Shawnigan you were there for the season.

That was all in a time gone by. I thought of it this morning, driving to work through the shafted sunlight piercing the trees on the road from Cigarmaker's Bay, up through the green-fresh hills to the highway, into the splendid new day beaming on country where broom is stretching a golden cover up hillsides and where camas is laying a blue blanket on fields closer to town.

It's routine now to commute. The number of people making Shawnigan a year-round home from which they drive daily to and from work in Victoria is growing. Noel Collison's permanent home is coming along nicely on the bay front.

But the day of the coal oil light, and its magnificent successor, the Coleman gas lamp, is gone. So too is the well. A person walks into his summer home now, admires the paneling he put in a year or two ago, switches on his lights when dusk sets in, reaches into the fridge for the libation or snack he wants, puts on his oil, gas or electric range, runs hot water into his bath and enjoys all the urban amenities.

He may row a boat, but chances are he'll press the starting button on his outboard and peel off from his dock with a water-skier or two behind him. He dresses for Sunday, as does his wife, in the proper casual wear for a resort, and his children, if the simple pleasures of earlier times call, can go indoors to watch television.

It's still a swell place to spend summer-time, Shawnigan, but different—more different, even, than the arrival of float planes bearing tycoons from Vancouver is from the march of sturdy folk down the Cliffside trail from the train in a departed past.

Change, though not decay, in all around you see, though whether it's for the better or not must be a matter of opinion.

Another Socred Quits In Caouette Protest

QUEBEC (CP)—Jean - Paul Cook, 37, former member of Parliament for Montmagny-Islet, announced Thursday he has resigned from the Quebec wing of the Social Credit party in protest against its leadership.

He told reporters that Real Caouette, the party's deputy national leader, also should resign because he "and a few of his valets" are hampering Social Credit's development as a national party.

He also demanded the resignation of Laurent Legault, president of Le Ralliement des Creditistes, to whom his letter of resignation was addressed.

Mr. Cook, 36, was defeated in his bid for re-election to the Commons at the April 8 federal election. He was first elected in June, 1962.

He said his resignation has no connection with the recent resignation of Dr. Guy Marcoux, MP for Quebec Montmorency, who now sits as an Independent Social Credit member.

Mr. Cook said Mr. Caouette is trying to replace Robert Thompson as national leader of the Social Credit party.

He said in his letter that Mr. Caouette has threatened "to expel all those who do not think the way he does and who dare use freedom of speech to tell him so."

He said many Social Credit members of Parliament last session intended to resign "following Mr. Caouette's refusal to stop making thoughtless statements." He said Mr. Thompson persuaded them to remain.

Differing Reaction

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson and Deputy Leader Real Caouette reacted differently Thursday night to an announcement by former MP Jean-Paul Cook that he is leaving the Social Credit Quebec wing.

Patricias Show Teeth In Last March

The 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry will stage a battle-ready parade through Victoria streets June 7, as a prelude to departure for duty in Germany.

Lt.-Col. George G. Brown, commanding officer, said Thursday 700 officers and men, and 160 vehicles will take part in the parade.

The battalion is moving to Germany this fall, in a change of postings with the Queen's Own Rifles.

The farewell parade as a fully-equipped infantry battalion will start at Work Point Barracks. Route will be along Esquimalt Road to Point Ellice Bridge, south on Douglas to Simcoe, thence to Beacon Hill Park.

Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson will take the salute on Dallas Road, below the lookout, at 7 p.m.

The battalion will then form up on the Beacon Hill sports field to demonstrate fighting equipment to the public.

Mr. Thompson told a reporter that Mr. Cook had performed his work conscientiously and well in the last Parliament. He agreed with Mr. Cook that Social Credit should become a truly national party.

Mr. Thompson added, however, that the resignation and Mr. Cook's allegations against leaders of Le Ralliement des Creditistes were entirely matters for Le Ralliement, the party's Quebec organization.

Mr. Caouette, leader of Le Ralliement, said in a separate interview that Mr. Cook "always worked behind our backs in Quebec."

Mr. Caouette denied all the allegations made against himself in Mr. Cook's letter of resignation. He said it is false to suggest that he wants to expel all party members who do not agree with him completely. "I only want to weed out the bad spirits, those who try to cause trouble, and Cook was one of them."

Animal Shelter Funds Mounting

With nearly another five weeks to run, the SPCA fund-raising drive has reached the $3,000 mark, jubilant officials of the organization report.

This is up $2,500 from last week. Objective is $35,000 to build the new animal shelter at Burnside and Napier.

Construction is scheduled to begin Aug. 1. Thousands of letters are still to go out requesting donations, say officials.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

They Thrive on Wet Feet

The sun-drenched soil is just right for the planting out of the warm weather vegetables.

Started plants of squash, marrow and cucumber will go ahead quickly if the soil is kept damp around their roots.

One friend has put everything imaginable—scarcely barring the traditional escape, the kitchen sink—into planting holes to retain moisture near roots during hot weather in a hard-to-water soil.

Soaking wet old newspapers, rotted compost, wet grass cuttings and thoroughly dampened peat moss are liberally used in each hole. Make the size to accommodate a generous quantity of each, and mix well on top of the newspapers.

Keeping these moisture retentive materials damp throughout summer should not be impossible if a canvas soaker is used once a week, or a hose nozzle allowed to trickle slowly at each plant for half an hour once a week.

And the method should save water.

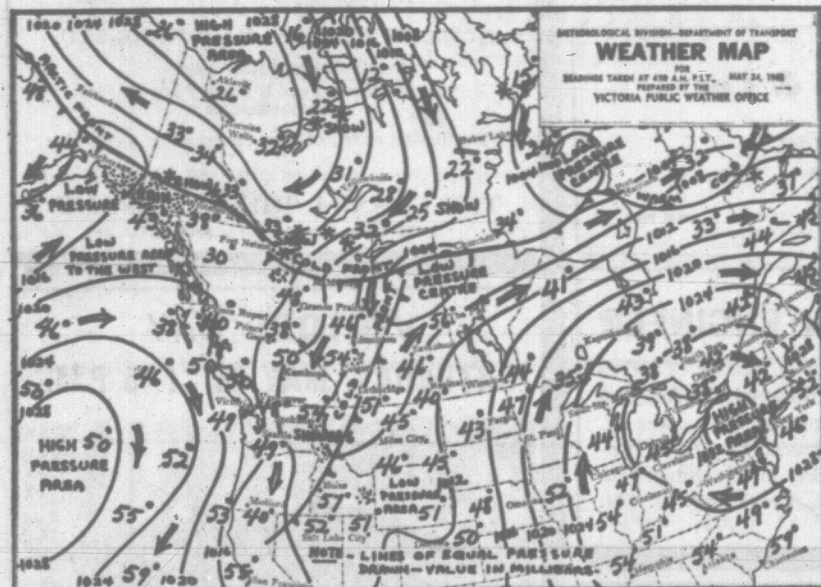

Vegetables (or fruits) such as the sweet pepper, eggplant and musk melon (cantaloupe) will be helped along if a glass sealer is put over each plant at night for as long as the sealer will fit the plant.

If the started plants of the type of squash or marrow you desire are not available, get a packet of the seed, and sow it at once three seeds to a station (group) about three feet apart.

Leave the strongest seedling of each group and use the glass sealer method to bring them along. In this case leave the sealer on also if the day is cool and overcast.

Preparing the soil beneath each station as outlined above will ensure adequate moisture being retained during the intervals between thorough soakings.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—A ridge of high pressure over the eastern Pacific appears likely to move into the interior late Saturday. Considerable cloud has appeared in some areas this morning but it should turn sunny in most regions by noon and clear out this evening. A threat of showers is indicated on the north coast and parts of the interior later today. The approach of a Pacific weather system Saturday will drive the ridge inland late Saturday and result in cloudy skies on the coast Saturday evening. Afternoon temperatures on Saturday should be about the same to five degrees higher than today.

Cuba Now Full-Fledged Soviet Union Satellite

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Through his richly ballyhoed visit to Russia, Fidel Castro has apparently converted Cuba into a full-fledged satellite of the Soviet Union.

If this means he now is going home to Havana, loaded with Soviet medals, to launch aggressive Communist operations against other Latin American countries, the world may well face another and far graver military crisis than that of last fall in the Caribbean.

For President Kennedy has made clear to the Communist leadership that peace in the Caribbean can be preserved only under two conditions. One is that Premier Khrushchev must not ship nuclear rockets to Cuba again. The other is that Castro must avoid hostile actions against neighboring countries.

The assumption in high Washington quarters is that Khrushchev wants to preserve Castro's Cuba as a showcase of Communist conquest far from the shores of the Soviet Union. If this proves to be correct, it is expected that Khrushchev will keep the Cuban prime minister under a tight leash indefinitely.

In the course of farewell ceremonies for Castro in Moscow Thursday, Khrushchev renewed his previous pledges to come to Cuba's aid if it is attacked. He said that any future crisis over

News Analysis

Cuba would be harder to solve than that of last October, when he agreed to remove his nuclear missiles and nuclear-capable bombers from the Caribbean island.

His words as to the gravity of a future crisis were reminiscent of warnings issued earlier this year by President Kennedy to the effect that any new aggressive move by the Soviet Union against the United States through Cuba would confront the world with the most dangerous crisis it has known.

Kennedy also has emphasized that any attack by Cuba against the United States or any Caribbean nation would precipitate a severe crisis. He said the same would apply to any Cuban attack on surface or air transport in the area, or any effort to export arms to other countries.

Banks Give Lift To Upward Swing

Times Business Editor

With the economy moving rapidly into high gear, the Bank of Canada is signalling an easier money supply situation and lower interest rates which would seem to assure plenty of momentum for the upward swing.

The treasury bill rate, indicator of money market conditions, dropped again this week to 3.23 per cent from last week's 3.28 per cent.

This was the fourth successive week the rate has come down since the period of fluctuation last month.

Coinciding with the lower interest rates and easier money indications have come a number of announcements of solid capital spending projects.

Near-to-home there was the Grosvenor-Laing and Woodward Stores announcement of a new $7 million shopping centre in Surrey, while in eastern Canada there has been a rash of announcements of new plant and expansion plans.

According to James Richardson and Sons there have been indications of chartered bank interest in money market securities, mainly bills and short maturity bond issues and this is expected to become more pronounced in the near future.

Bank of Canada reports government deposits increased $2,255,000 to $38,282,000 in the week ended May 22.

For the same period chartered bank deposits increased $10,115,000 to $757,677,000 and notes in circulation decreased $2,981,000 to $2,150,007,000.

Housing starts in Victoria in April showed a decline over the same month last year as the industry seemed to enter a breathing spell period after the heavy pace set in early spring.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. statistics show starts for the month at 65 compared with 105 last year but the cumulative total this year at 395 is still well ahead of last year's 364.

April was the first month this year when no row or apartment house starts were recorded. The 65 starts during the month were all one or two family dwellings. Saanich led the way in starts with 52 out of the 65.

Starts in all urban centres of B.C. for April totalled 820, almost the same as a year ago, bringing the provincial four-month total to 3,153 compared with 2,825 for the same period last year.

CMHC notes the number of newly-completed and unoccupied houses has been increasing monthly this year in Vancouver while the Victoria an increase has also been noted but on a much smaller scale.

IWA Leader To Attend Labor College

Murray Drew, 42-year-old head of the Victoria local of the IWA, will be one of the first students of the Labor College of Canada in Montreal.

He is the only Vancouver Islander picked from dozens of B.C. applicants. First classes are June 3 to July 9.

About 80 students from the trade union movement across Canada make up the inaugural class, the result of a 77-year-old union ambition and first of its kind in North America. Their ages range from 22 to 52, most of them union officers.

The college is in Montreal at the University of Montreal, which in co-operation with McGill University, Canadian Labor Congress and Confederation of National Trade Unions, is providing capsule courses in history, economics, sociology, trade unionism and political science.

Mr. Drew became president of Local 1-118, Greater Victoria's largest union, a year ago.

He has lived in Victoria eight years, prior to which he resided in Ontario.

His predecessor, John MacKenzie, now a vice-president of IWA region one in Vancouver, is also expected to attend the labor college.

Hearing on CKDA Duncan Move Set for June 4

The Board of Broadcast Governors today revised its agenda for a public hearing to open in Ottawa June 4.

Capital Broadcasting System Limited is asking for a licence to establish a new standard broadcast radio station at Duncan, to broadcast programs part-time from the studios of Station CKDA, Victoria, and part-time from a studio at Duncan.

Dropped from the agenda is an application by Saanich Broadcasting Company Limited for an increase in power and change of frequency of radio station CFAX, Victoria, which originally asked for authority to operate on a full-time basis.

Current Foils Grim Search

MURDOCHVILLE, Que. (CP)—A 25-mile-an-hour current is hindering attempts to fish out two cars and the bodies of five missing miners from the York River near Murdochville.

The body of one man, Robert McCoy, 23, of Barachois, Que., was recovered Thursday but four attempts to pull out a car from the swift-flowing river were frustrated at the last moment by the current.

The six miners disappeared after a 30-foot-section of a 120-foot concrete bridge collapsed Wednesday morning when flood-swollen waters undermined a pillar.

NEW CITY GOV'T IN BIRMINGHAM

Negroes Hope for New Deal

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Negro leaders, although voicing some skepticism, today looked to the new city government of soft-spoken Mayor Albert Boutwell for "direct progress" in race relations.

Boutwell and nine city councilmen assumed office Thursday after the State Supreme Court ousted a hard-core segregationist board of three city commissioners who had refused to relinquish authority because of an apparent conflict in election laws.

The former lieutenant-governor, sometimes called the legislative "Father of Alabama Segregation Laws," immediately expressed a willingness to talk with local Negro leaders about racial problems.

Police Commissioner Eugene (Bull) Connor, along with Mayor Art Hanes and Commissioner J. T. Waggoner, had taken a hard stand in opposition to any racial talks. Connor was widely known as a symbol of defiance to integration.

A local integration leader said the court ruling meant "justice and progress" for Birmingham. But Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the integrationist campaign here, had a differing view.

"Don't think just because Mr. Boutwell is mayor that the kingdom of God has come to Birmingham," King said.

A top King aide, Rev. Ralph Abernathy, called Boutwell "A refined Bull Connor."

Boutwell said that while his "door is open to any citizen of Birmingham" this did not include King. He said "I would not receive anyone who shows disrespect for any laws—federal, state or local."

SERGEANT, PER SHING, NOT FOR NATO

U.S. to Withhold New Nuclear Weapons

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

OTTAWA (AP)—U.S. nuclear-tipped battlefield weapons in Europe will remain outside any NATO atomic organization.

The possibility has been suggested that the new structure for NATO's nuclear striking forces — bombers, fighter-bombers and U.S. Polaris submarines — might be extended to include a variety of bombardment missiles based in Europe.

But it has been learned on the highest authority that such weapons as the 75-mile-range Sergeant missile, a fast-firing weapon recently sent to Europe, and the 400-mile-range Pershing, due to follow, will be excluded from any such NATO framework.

U.S. authorities consider it vital to keep these weapons — and the older, slower — firing liquid fuel rockets they are replacing gradually — with ground units.

Presumably this also will apply to such missiles already supplied to Allied armies committed to the defence of western Europe, including the Sergeants which the West Germans are receiving from the United States.

The nuclear warheads will remain under U.S. control.

According to the latest estimates, the number of nuclear warheads for U.S. ground weapons in Europe has increased by 60 per cent during the last 24 to 26 months.

High U.S. authorities are pleased with the progress made at the NATO meeting ending today.

PROGRESS SEEN

Although some critics say the new framework for the NATO nuclear striking forces amounts to little, U.S. officials say a look back over the last two years shows otherwise.

Two years ago, the Americans claim, it would have been considered out of the question for the non-nuclear allied countries to be given the role they now will be allocated in targeting, or for them to get the volume of information on nuclear forces they now can expect from the United States.

U.S. leaders feel the proposal for a NATO fleet of surface ships bearing Polaris missiles and manned by mixed crews may have advanced a step although there was no decision one way or the other on this at the Ottawa meeting.

U.S. policymakers stress that the United States is not out to sell the multi-national Polaris force. It is up to the European nations to initiate action to create that force.

EYEBROWS RAISED IN COMMONS Coast MP Asks New Look At National Industries

PROBATION REPORTS PROTECTED

A probation report on an accused person may not be used as evidence in any case against them, Magistrate William Ostler ruled Thursday in city police court. Probation reports are made to give magistrates guidance in sentencing a prisoner. They are not submitted until after an accused person has been found guilty. The ruling was made after acting Crown prosecutor Jack Gatehouse sought to question a probation officer who had talked to a person accused of breaking and entering. The magistrate said the function of a probation officer might be hindered if he could be questioned and made to give evidence. It could also be unfair to an accused person, said Magistrate Ostler.

OTTAWA (CP)—Radical ideas for selling federal Crown corporations, letting "old" industries such as coal mining die, and creating a Canadian tax haven for research are enough to raise eyebrows in the Commons whatever their source. The stir was even greater Thursday when those proposals came from Jack Davis, 46, economist and engineer, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, and one of the young liberals most frequently named as future cabinet material. Was Mr. Davis giving a preview of government policy or just flying a kite? Former Speaker Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) raised this point immediately. But he got no immediate answer. Mr. Davis, MP for Coast-Capilano, drew comment from several other members including wholesale merchant Stuart Fleming (PC—Okanagan-Revelstoke).

Specific points Mr. Davis raised: Some new industries on the verge of being economic propositions could be accelerated "if the government got into the picture at an early stage." One such scheme could be uranium processing.

Mr. Davis said he was not advocating a large number of Crown corporations. These might be created at times "but surely relatively low-cost money is a sufficient advantage."

HAVE ADVANTAGES
Most Crown corporations now operated free of taxation—certainly free of income tax. They had great advantages over the private sector. To go on this way would continue "this immense financial bias." Eventually it could lead to a socialist state.

"I think we should develop a mechanism for selling off these Crown corporations. This has been done in other parts of the world."

"I think we could devise ways in Canada of getting government out of business as well as into business, as well as ways of creating Canadian ownership and retaining ownership in this country."

Referring to "old industries," Mr. Davis noted that the coal industry gets tremendous subsidies. Meanwhile the truly economic industries of oil and gas and—to a lesser extent—power were being heavily taxed.

He argued that many of the subsidies were undertaken in the mistaken belief that coal was passing through a difficult, un-economic phase which would be corrected by growing demands for all forms of energy.

His suggestion was that Canadians must reconcile themselves to old and less economic industries dying. And in doing so, he urged that they be left in the private sector of the economy where substantial government assistance is not always necessary.

Mr. Davis said Canada would be well advised to make this country a tax haven for research and development "of various kinds." Royalties and other yields from successful ideas should be tax-free.

ENCOURAGE INDUSTRY
This would not only encourage new industries in Canada, "but it would cause some large international corporations which so far have been very shy about carrying out any research here to do so."

Canada has little to lose by such a move, Mr. Davis said. The tax yield from such activities now was low because such activities were practically nonexistent.

Favoring the proposed economic council, Mr. Davis said it would determine current trends and make forecasts. It could not be a "secretive body," it would have to communicate freely and frequently with labor and management. In fact Mr. Davis suggested these two groups should place men on the council for short periods.

"We need long-term forecasting and long-term planning," Mr. Davis went on. Federal budgets now looked ahead one year at a time. It was necessary to look much farther into the future to make intelligent decisions, remove uncertainties, and avoid federal policy conflicts.

Mr. Fleming, speaking more about the throne speech than Mr. Davis's remarks, said at one point:

"I think the people of Canada should examine most carefully (these proposals) and wonder along what path the Liberal party is intending to take them, and see whether it may soon decide to announce itself—as it did not in the last election but may very well in the next—as the Liberal Socialist party of Canada."

CAUSE FOR DOUBT?
Many of the proposals should give cause for apprehension and doubt rather than confidence, Mr. Fleming said.

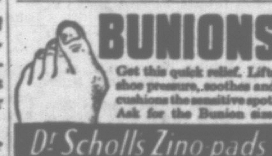

He was sharply critical of the proposal for a new department of industry. Canada already had departments of industry—the departments of agriculture, forestry, fisheries, mines, and the trade ministry itself. Each had specialized knowledge. Each could provide industrial stimulus.

"The continuing effective use of these particular departments dealing with our principle industries, our resources and our secondary industries is the requirement which is laid at the door of this government, not the proliferation of departmental utilization."

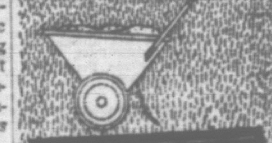

"We have enough of bureaucracy now without this addition."

Mr. Fleming also labelled the proposed double ministry of agriculture as a "political trick" and said it would lead to confusion and delay. The government will regret this impulse promise, he predicted.

The throne speech was mainly a borrowing of ideas from the Conservative legislative program left hanging at dissolution last February, Mr. Fleming said. Furthermore, it contained measures "that ultimately could do greater damage to Canada than any benefits they provided."

ROOKIE ACE SAYS HABS HAVE BOOMER ON BLOCK

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman Kent Douglas predicts that Montreal Canadiens' right winger Bernie (Boomer) Geoffrion will be with the Leafs next season.

Douglas said in an interview Thursday that Geoffrion is going to be traded from the Canadiens "and it looks like he'll be joining us."

He said the Canadiens are interested in several Leaf players but wouldn't suggest who would be sent to Montreal in exchange for Geoffrion.

Douglas this season became the first defenceman in the NHL to win the Calder Trophy as the league's top rookie.

In Montreal, Ken Reardon, vice-president of Montreal Canadiens, refused to comment on Douglas' statement.

ARRIVES SATURDAY

Bernie Busy On City Visit

Toot the trumpets, clang the cymbals—and make way for Boomer Boon.

Bernard "Boomer" Geoffrion, right winger, Montreal Canadiens, will be in Victoria on the weekend, shaking hands, autographing sticks and pictures, showing films, and generally spreading goodwill.

One of the great scorers in the National Hockey League—he shares the record of most goals (50) in one season with Chicago's Bobby Hull and Rocket Richard—Geoffrion is on a coast-to-coast goodwill tour. Victoria Jaycees are handling local arrangements.

The Boomer will arrive Saturday, do a radio show, and then rest up for a heavy Sunday program. At 1:30 p.m. he will officially open National Little League play at Jaycee Park. At 3:30 p.m. he will perform identical duties for the American Little League at Allenby Park.

He will be maitre'd, MC and main speaker at a minor hockey rally in the Fox Theatre at 7 p.m. Films of the 1962 Stanley Cup series will be followed by a question-and-answer session with Bernie fielding and throwing.

Victoria Gyros will hear Geoffrion at their noon luncheon Monday at the Empress. His Victoria visit concludes at 6:30 p.m. Monday with a dinner attended by minor hockey officials at the Ingraham Hotel.

Listless Solons Behave As Usual for New Pilot

Associated Press

On the strength of his first night on the job, Gil Hodges appears to be in no danger of having to leave the country.

Hodges, moving from cellar to cellar, took over as manager of the last-place Washington Senators Thursday night, shifting from New York Mets who occupy a similar position in the National League.

Before the game, the appointment came up for discussion in the Hall of Congress, where one representative said if Hodges can do anything with the slumping Senators he will be just the man to take over the U.S. foreign aid program.

Gil seems to be safe at home for a while. Senators responded to new leadership by rolling over quietly before Robin Roberts and Baltimore Orioles, 6-0, for their 11th loss in their last 12 games.

Roberts held Senators to two hits, both by shortstop Ed Brinkman, and didn't walk a man as he pitched his third straight complete victory. The 36-year-old right-hander lost his first four this season.

The victory, Baltimore's ninth in 10 games, moved Orioles a half-game in front in the American League over the idle Chicago White Sox.

The other two games on the slim baseball card also produced shutouts, both in the National League.

St. Louis Cardinals moved back into third place with a 1-0 victory over Chicago Cubs, and Cincinnati Reds defeated Milwaukee Braves 2-0.

Ernie Broglio, the Cardinal ace, ran his record to 5-1 with a five-hitter. Lefty Dick Ellisworth, who allowed only four hits in seven innings, was the Cub victim. Catcher Gene Oliver's homer in the fifth accounted for the only run.

Jim O'Toole won his seventh against three losses on a three-hitter against Braves. Denny Lemaster, the loser, threw a four-hitter. Reds scored in the fourth on an error and a pop double by Daryl Spencer. They added a run in the ninth on another error, a stolen base and a single by Ken Walters.

GET TWO HOMERS
Senators wasted little time showing their new manager how life is lived in the other cellar. Starter Claude Osteen gave up all six Baltimore runs in the first three innings. Solo homers by Al Smith and Jerry Adair and a two-run double by Jack Brandt were the big blows.

Hodges and the Senators had come under Congressional scrutiny during a House of Representatives committee hearing on foreign aid.

AFL-CIO chief George Meany asked if Hodges would make a good manager of Senators.

Rep. Edna Kelly of Brooklyn, noting Gil's long service with Dodgers when they occupied that area, said: "Anybody from Brooklyn is bound to do a good job."

Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio said: "All I can say is, if he does, we ought to get him to run the foreign aid program."

Actually, about the only managerial move Hodges was allowed to make turned out well. He yanked Osteen in the third for Jim Dickworth, who blanked the Orioles the final 5½ innings.

Osteen was the 14th consecutive left-hander who failed to last against Orioles, who are 12-1 against southpaws. But Osteen was selected to pitch before Hodges took over.

Stuart Murray turned in the only British victory, beating Billy Joe Patton and Dick Sikes 4 and 1.

Eight singles matches were to be played this afternoon and another series of four foursomes and eight singles will conclude the series Saturday. All matches are over the 18-hole route.

After two days of beautiful weather during the practice rounds, the fickle Firth of Clyde kicked up a heavy cloud bank and a freezing wind this morning as four foursomes got under way.

Then the rains came and transformed the greens into something new to most of the Americans. They started three-putting and the British chances perked up remarkably.

Labron Harris Jr., U.S. amateur champion, and Downing Gray gave the U.S. the lead when they defeated Joe Carr of Ireland and Christy Green of Scotland 2 up.

Dane Beman, former U.S. and British amateur champion, and Charlie Coe won the other point for the United States by beating David Sheahan and Michael Lunt 5 and 3.

Bob Gardner and Dr. Ed Updegraff halved their match with Britain's David Madeley and Ronnie Shae after being 2 down at the 13th hole.

CAHA Favors Principle Of National Puck Team

GOLF SCHOOL

DON'T GET HANDS AHEAD OF CLUBHEAD ON DRIVE

Today's illustration of a full drive impact is correct in every respect but one. The golfer's weight is solidly on his left side. His head is behind the ball. His arms are practically straight at impact.

But the one error he has committed will probably throw his shot off line. His hands are too far ahead of the clubhead at impact. Usually, when this happens, the golfer does not give his clubhead enough time to square up. In other words, it will probably be open, and the shot will go to the right. If he is conscious of this fault, he may put extra effort into squaring the face and get it closed at impact—and see a disastrous, snap-hook fly down the left side of the fairway.

At impact the hands should be just about over the ball. One way to help achieve this is to play the ball farther forward than today's golfer. The ball should be off his left heel for a drive—not in the centre of his stance.

Rangers Sign Dick Meissner

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers of the National Hockey League acquired Dick Meissner, 23-year-old right winger, from Boston Bruins. The Rangers took an option on Meissner last winter as part of a deal that sent Dean Prentice to Boston in exchange for Don McKenney.

BRANDON (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, Thursday ordered its official magazine to cease publication.

Hockey Canada, a controversial money loser in its nine-month existence, will die with the June issue.

The decision to kill the monthly magazine came at a closed executive session at the tail end of the annual CAHA meeting here.

Gordon Jukes, CAHA secretary-manager, said later the magazine could not be financed without seriously depleting the association's funds. No loss figures were released.

The magazine had a troubled life ever since its birth last October with the aim of promoting hockey. Officials hoped for a circulation of 140,000 with each player and official registered with the CAHA getting the magazine automatically through the mail.

A registration fee, ranging from 25 cents for minor players $1 for coaches, was introduced to help pay for the magazine. But officials said registering responsible for collecting the money—reverted the move and to avoid discord the CAHA did not push for collection of the registration fee.

HAD 32,000 SUBSCRIBERS

Subscription through registration fees eventually settled at $2,000 and another $8,000 to $12,000 were sold on newstands.

In other decisions, delegates empowered the national executive to explore the mechanics of setting up a national team to represent Canada in world competition. Such a team, made up of players from across the country and operated by CAHA, would be a marked departure from past policy on international competition.

Unlike European countries, Canada has always selected a club already in existence to represent Canada. Art Potter of Edmonton, CAHA president, said a national team is long overdue.

The CAHA also passed a motion of opposition to the National Hockey League's partial draft of 16-year-old amateurs to go into effect June 5. The CAHA wants a universal pro draft of over-age juniors to replace the NHL sponsorship system under which players are tied up.

AWARDS TOURS

Overseas tours were awarded to Canada's top two senior clubs, Windsor Bulldogs and Winnipeg Maroons. Bulldogs, who beat Maroons in the 1963 Allan Cup final, will go to Russia and Europe in the late fall and the Maroons will tour Europe later.

The CAHA also passed a mo-

Hunt Says Au Revoir To Dallas

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Millionaire Lamar Hunt, owner of the American Football League champion Dallas Texans, moved his club to Kansas City Wednesday, admitting defeat in the three-year dollar war with Dallas Cowboys of the rival National League.

After three years of losses at the gate, estimated at $1,250,000, Hunt said he was convinced that two pro teams could not prosper in Dallas. In 1952, a Dallas entry in the NFL lasted only a half season.

Hunt organized the AFL in 1960 when he and Bud Adams, another Texas oil millionaire, were denied franchises in the NFL for Houston and Dallas. After the AFL was announced, the NFL immediately gave a franchise to another Dallas group and set the stage for the dollar war that continued until Wednesday.

"In just five short weeks Kansas City sales in dollars have surpassed total season ticket receipts for 1962 at five NFL cities," the 31-year-old Hunt said. He said he hoped to have an announcement by this weekend on a new name for the club.

Students Shot in Rioting

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Police bullets felled 20 of 400 high school students who went on a wild rampage through a cattle town Thursday after failing to get two teachers of their choice.

In another riot at an oil refining centre, a boy was killed and 13 soldiers were injured in a clash resulting from a strike by civic organizations protesting electric and water shortages.

The students set fire to the town hall, the postoffice and the telegraph office in Macangue, 400 miles northwest of Bogota. Stores were looted and cars smashed.

Police said 20 students were taken to a hospital in serious condition. The students earlier kidnapped four crew members from an airliner and held them hostage in their school. Police and soldiers charged with tear gas and freed the crew.

EXPERIMENTS HOPEFUL FOR STRICKEN BABIES

TORONTO (CP)—Some "clinically dead" babies have been revived at the Hospital for Sick Children by an experimental treatment for a respiratory condition peculiar to newborns, hospital trustees were told Thursday night.

Dr. W. Stanley Hartcroft, director of the hospital's research institute, said the treatment might save more babies if staff and money were available, but "it would take $110,000 more in salaries than we have now."

He said once children are put on the treatment they must be watched day and night up to a week.

Dr. P. R. Sawyer of the hospital staff said the method extended life for about 52 hours in some cases, but then the children died for obscure reasons. One, however, is still alive after more than a week.

It was concluded that enough functional lung tissue remains in such children to support life and perhaps life could be extended indefinitely if medical men could move in earlier.

IN CHINESE SCHOOLS

Red Ideology Basic Teaching

A British author who has just concluded a tour of Communist China tells how school children are carefully guided down the Marxist-Leninist road.

(This is fourth of a series.)

By RICHARD F. LISTER

PEKING (AP)—A nation undergoes a great change; suddenly everything is new. But within a few years there appears a generation to whom the new and revolutionary is the old and familiar.

We tourists visited the Middle School at Ming Hung, a new industrial and residential area—a satellite town—outside Shanghai. The children now entering the school, at 12 or 13, were born since the red revolution. None of the pupils can have any real recollection of the old order.

It is an old-established school, built in 1865. The principal, Mr. Yeh, was more determined than most Chinese we met to impress us with the correctness of his ideology. Before the "liberation," he told us, all the students were from the landlord class or the bourgeoisie. Now, 86 per cent are from worker or peasant families.

There are 1,900 of them, and most live here during the term. They live nine to a room—small rooms, with double bunks on each side and a single bed almost filling up the remaining space.

The aims of the school? To form the children morally, intellectually and physically, we are told, cultural and scientific knowledge must be taught, but education must also develop the desired working-class outlook, and some time must be devoted to productive labor.

Every student spends three or four hours a week either cultivating the school fields, working in the shops, or on domestic duties—cleaning or in the kitchen.

A line of 14 trucks was drawn up in the yard, engines and chassis only. Girls and boys were cutting up steel angles and sheet for building the bodies. Productive labor is sternly practical. Down the road from the workshops we found the school piggeries, and enclosures for ducks and chickens.

The children must learn to serve the Communist reconstruction of the country, so there are two hours a week of classroom instruction in Marxism-Leninism, and two more hours are spent in discussion or in studying political subjects. Three to five days of the vacation are spent in militia training.

SOME SHORTCOMINGS

And how do the pupils fare in their studies? There are still shortcomings, Mr. Yen told us. In one class there are one or two students who will fail their examinations. Still, if a student fails or has a bad record, everybody in the class is to help him. It's the old appeal to "public opinion," however narrow, which is supposed to influence the backslider, Yen said.

The teaching staff appears to be well paid by Chinese standards. One woman who had taught for 30 years, including 20 at this school, received 137 yuan a month ($70)—against the national average wage of 70 yuan.

It does not seem as if the schoolchildren of China have a gay life. Yet they look happy—the charm of the children is perhaps the happiest impression the visitor to China carries away.

EXTENT ARGUED AT SUMMIT

Africans Agree on Unity

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—Leaders of independent Africa today showed agreement on the need to adopt the principle of unity but remained divided on its extent.

Speeches by some of the most influential statesmen before the summit of African chiefs of state indicated the final drafting of an African unity charter is not imminent.

Even Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah, who has been calling for a tightly-knit African super state, proposed that the conference adopt only a declaration of the principle of unity.

Nkrumah suggested that the details of an African charter that would form "a union government of Africa" be worked out by a foreign ministers committee later this year.

Nigeria's Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa chilled his audience by telling it bluntly that "unity cannot be achieved as long as some African states continue to engage in subversive activities in other African countries."

It was a clear reference to Ghana, whose ambitions as the continent's leader are bitterly criticized by a number of African states.

The first open fight of the conference occurred after Somali Prime Minister Abdullah Osman publicly restated his claims to parts of Ethiopia where Somali people are a majority.

Ethiopian Prime Minister Haile Selassie called the claims "unmentionable."

While the speeches continued, two working groups consisting of foreign ministers and their aides were studying various proposals for an African unity charter.

But the tone of the speeches by the chiefs of state cast doubt on whether the current summit will be able to produce something more than a declaration of principle of African unity.

FORMER VICTORIA naval officer Capt. Anthony F. Pickard has been appointed to Ottawa headquarters as director of naval ship requirements.

More for Defence

CAN BERRA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies announced Wednesday a big increase in Australia's defence spending program during the next five years. The government also has decided to buy 18 Canadian Caribou transports and 40 French Mirage-III jets to bring the air force total of supersonic fighters up to 100.

'Open House' Launches High Rise

Victoria's newest high-rise apartment, Seaview Towers, 450 Dallas Road at Menzies, will be opened to the public Saturday between the hours of 1 and 5 in the afternoon.

The "open house" marks the end of 10 months of construction to complete the 10-storey (plus penthouse) apartment block.

Situated close to Beacon Hill Park and within easy walking distance of downtown Victoria, the building occupies a site which will provide tenants with a scenic panorama.

This includes the snow-capped Olympic mountains, Juan de Fuca Strait and the interesting shipping activities at Ogden Point harbor.

It is also a stone throw from the beach and a short distance from the yacht pool.

The suites in the apartment total 58. These include bachelor, one-bedroom, two-bedroom and three-bedroom suites, as well as the penthouse.

Presently under construction is a two-storey apartment adjoining the main structure which will contain 16 additional suites when completed sometime this fall.

The spacious suites, furnished with oak floors throughout, are all equipped with refrigerators and electric stoves. All windows are provided with curtains.

Tenants will have at their disposal two elevators.

Storage Facilities

In the basement there are storage facilities for each tenant, as well as a laundry room equipped with three automatic washers and three automatic dryers.

Outside there is a black top parking lot which tenants can use free of charge, but there will be a small fee for use of covered parking lots.

In front, the building has been landscaped with evergreens, broom and other shrubs in keeping with the surrounding seascape. Bamboo is used effectively near the entrance.

The entrance is controlled and inside is a tastefully decorated lounge.

Plans call for the construction of a swimming pool which will face Dallas Road. Contractor is Marquardt Construction Ltd.

Will Homing Instinct Return Stolen Radio?

Diesel engine expert Don Pasmore wonders if the homing instinct in his portable radio still works.

Stolen from his parked car almost a year ago, it returned mysteriously by mail at Christmas time, then was stolen again — along with some $600 worth of Diesel trouble-shooting tools — Saturday in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

If the "homing" instinct remains, Mr. Pasmore feels a better chance of getting back his uninsured tools, especially since he received little encouragement when he reported the theft to Vancouver police.

The transistor-type radio was first stolen last July when Mr. Pasmore left his car, unlocked for a few minutes in front of his house at 1666 Oak Bay.

Because of its unusual design he was able to make strides toward recovering it, then suddenly got it back by mail in a plain wrapper.

"A THIEF"

Last month he found a note on his car windshield:

"I hope you appreciate getting your radio back. A thief."

The mechanic has been well-known in the logging industry, construction and diesel machinery fields all over B.C. for 17 years. He works for Cummins Diesel Sales of B.C., whose marked car he was driving.

"A lot of those tools would have my initials on them, some of them with my name, and are likely to be spotted by other mechanics," he said.

"The Vancouver police said they'd make a report on it and advised me to contact the second hand detail. But I doubt if those tools would ever get to a second hand store. They will probably be sold in some beer parlor," Mr. Pasmore said.

'Fighting Junks'

SAIGON (AP) — The last of 500 fighting junks built under a $2,000,000 United States contract was turned over to the South Vietnamese navy Thursday. The junk fleet has been built by local contractors to strengthen Viet Nam's coastal defences against Communist infiltration. Each junk normally carries a crew of three armed sailors.

Family of 4 Dead

EDMONTON (CP) — A family of four was found shot to death in their South Edmonton home Tuesday. Police said G. Wilke, 43, was found in one of the bedrooms and his 38-year-old wife was found on a bed. The two children, Hardy, 10, and Marion, 8, were also found on a bed.

New Rule
To Assist
Retailers

A new U.S. regulation permitting Americans to deduct from customs declarations 40 per cent of the cost of Canadian purchases was hailed here today.

Previously U.S. tourists were allowed to declare the wholesale value of merchandise under their $100 monthly duty-free exemption, subject to evaluation by customs officers.

Tourist Bureau commissioner William Hawkins commented that properly publicized by Victoria merchants, the move could result in a considerable increase in tourist spending here.

"Rounding off varying wholesale prices to a straight 40 per cent deduction should make it easier to get across to tourists that their $100 exemption is really worth $140 in terms of retail prices," he said.

Chamber of Commerce retail trade group chairman Lloyd Davies said his organization would make sure all members were aware of the new ruling.

Stores catering to tourists will be able to point out the 40 per cent rule to American customers.

Mr. Davies had further good news for Victoria merchants regarding the $100 customs exempt gifts which Americans are allowed to ship to friends in the U.S.

TRIAL BASIS

Because of abuses of the privilege, U.S. authorities had moved to end the exemption but Mr. Davies said, word has been received that the practice will be continued on a six-month trial basis.

"The U.S. customs authorities have placed the onus squarely on Canadian merchants to end the abuses," Mr. Davies said. "They have made it clear that if the situation is not cleared up in six months, the exemption will be withdrawn."

For instance, a U.S. tourist might buy an expensive set of China and have the store mail it in separate pieces, each valued under $10, to a number of friends in the U.S. On arriving home, the tourist would collect the separate pieces from the friends and end up with the set, perhaps valued at several hundred dollars, duty-free.

Accountants Here

Among the guest speakers enrolled for the business sessions are E. T. Cantell, superintendent of insurance and real estate; W. S. Irwin, chairman of the B.C. Securities Commission; C. A. Perry, assessor of succession duties; G. T. McCulloch, inspector of credit unions, and J. O. Hemmingsen, vice-president of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

SOLUTION MONDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — It's Sweet Girl Graduate time — and Brenda Lee, 19, recently married, a cafe star, a globetrotter who's been in 23 countries, will be doing the cap-and-gown routine ... at the Hollywood Professional School.

If you had trouble getting through high school — who didn't? — consider Brenda.

"I did my homework on jets crossing the ocean ... In Paris, going to the American High School outside the city, I wanted to be grown up and always rode a bus ... and got lost ...

"In Hollywood, it was a little ridiculous when I was making a film. My school-room was a dressing room.

"The teacher taught me ... a high school student ... and two little guys in the first and second grade ... in the same room. We'd go right from American History to spelling 'dog' and 'cat'.

"The other actors would stand outside peeping in through a crack, kidding me about going to school with these two itty-bitty suckers."

Four-foot-9½-inch Brenda nevertheless wants to go to college.

"To take a business course ... I'd like to learn more about what I'm doing," she said, surprisingly.

Meaning, I suspect, that Brenda, probably the richest Sweet Girl Graduate in her class, wants to know about handling that money she'll come into when she's 21.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL ...

Robert ("Music Man") Preston and his wife have separated, after 23 years of what the actor called "one of our business' happy marriages." The couple have no children, and Preston said, "One thing I'm pleased about—there are no kids involved."

Tony Perkins is about to star in a new movie, "The Fool-Killer"—but first he took time to audition for the Actors Studio ... The stage mgr. of "Never Too Late" reported to the audience, during intermissions, the progress of Astronaut Gordon Cooper ... N.Y. City Centre wanted Omar Sharif, the hit of "Lawrence of Arabia," for "King and I," but Equity said no. (It wants the job for an American actor.)

Shirley Jones and Jack Cassidy brought Sybil Burton to hear the gospel music at Sweet Chariot ... Vivien Leigh of "Tovarich" told her agent: No more TV appearances ... Mel Ferrer, wearing a beard, took Audrey Hepburn to Le Manoir ... Bob Hope starts filming "Global Affair" here June 17 ... Allison Hayes here, pretty up ABC-TV's "General Hospital."

TV's Woody Woodbury's dr. Kim, 6, will appear with him in "A Young Man's Fancy"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Phil Foster suspects that Liz Taylor and Richard Burton will be married in England—she just ordered towels marked "Is and Ers."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Women have one main topic of conversation. They're either talking about how thin they used to be, or how thin they're gonna be.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Our values have changed through the years. Today we judge a girl not by what she measures up to, but what she measures out to."—Sig Sakowicz.

EARL'S PEARLS: There are two sorts of people, the haves and the havenots. Or, to put it another way, wives and husbands.—Jackie Kannon.

Rocky Graziano, who'll be a regular on Kefauver's CBS-TV show, was late for a photo session. He explained he'd been dining at 21, the plush restaurant: "Can you imagine me eating at 21? I'm lucky to count that high." That's earl, brother.

Pat and Kathy Top 'Who-What-Why' Kids

The White family at 784 Hillside this week became the first family in Victoria to win four prizes for having questions accepted for the "Ask Andy" column.

Pat White, 14, a Grade 9 S. J. Willis Junior High pupil, today won a complete set of World Book Encyclopedia as an award for asking the question: "Does diet change a flamingo's color?" The question is answered in today's column.

He won a Hammond's Nature Atlas in 1961.

His sister, Kathy, 13, also won a World Book Encyclopedia in 1961 and in 1962 a World Book Atlas.

Their mother, Mrs. Nina White, who encourages her children to send questions to Andy, couldn't believe at first that one of her children had won another prize.

"It's hard to believe," she said. "Now Pat and Kathy each have a set of books. There won't be any more fighting over books."

Pat is a studious boy. He is

determined to go to university to become an astronomer.

His bent seems to be mathematics. He has had an A in maths in all three terms this year. In Grade 8 he won an academic award.

Apart from reading, Pat likes field and track sports. He is also fond of tumbling.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive valuable prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond's Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Patrick White, age 14, of Victoria, B.C., Canada, for his question:

Does diet change a flamingo's color?

Poor diet can ruin a person's appearance — and the same rule could apply to a flamingo. Malnutrition causes all kinds of upsets in the human body — and none of these changes adds anything to a person's good looks. There is reliable evidence that a flamingo also loses his good looks from malnutrition resulting from an unsuitable diet.

The free flamingo enjoys life in the shallow waters of tropical and semi-tropical salt marshes. Sometimes the gaudy bird is taken to live in a zoological park or garden where the public can admire his rosy plumage at close range. This pampered life does not always agree with the flamingo. His petal pink-red color may fade, and his feathers may lose some of the gloss and take on a dry, shabby appearance.

Reliable bird watchers report that the brightest tanagers are those birds that are in vigorous good health. And good health depends upon diet. The best-dressed birds, then, seem to be the best-fed birds. This could be the case with the flamingo. The trouble is that conditions in his natural feeding grounds are very difficult to reproduce in a zoological park.

He is a long-legged, wading bird, and his dining table is the muddy floor of a salt marsh. He bends down his long neck and dips his head upside down into the shallow water. His huge beak curves down from a hump in the middle, and the upper section is used as a scoop. There is a row of combs on either side of this amazing beak.

The flamingo scoops up a beak full of mud mixed with an assortment of marine life. He squeezes some of the soupy mixture out through the combs on the sides of his beak and swallows the rest whole.

Eats Mollusks and Algae

His diet includes mollusks, insects, algae and a few small fish. He also swallows a little mud which is rich in organic matter left by assorted marine life. Every day, the soupy diet of the free flamingo is sifted by the changing tides.

In captivity, the big bird may miss some of the items on his natural diet. He may not get the right food to produce the oily brilliance he uses to preen his plumage. Dry feathers look drab. It is also possible that malnutrition may deprive him of the chemicals that add the rosy tints to his plumage. In any case, he can be restored to normal when the proper items are returned to his diet.

Most birds are colored to blend in with their surroundings. But the bright flamingo is an outstanding figure on his drab salt marshes. However, he has no need for protective coloring. On the wide, flat marshes, he can see a long way in all directions. No skulking enemy can creep up on him unnoticed, and the great bird can take to the air long before danger approaches.

Parade 'Gaposis' Sparks Better Marshalling Plea

Mayor R. B. Wilson, Thursday, told city council the Victoria Day Grand Parade was an excellent spectacle with top notch entries but the effect was spoiled by large gaps.

ARMY SGT. GUNNED DOWN IN BARRACKS

BARRIE, Ont. (UPI) — A 32-year-old mess sergeant to day was charged with the capital murder of a soldier who once owned the distinction of being the youngest sergeant in the Canadian army.

Sgt. Leonard R. Demille, a cook, was remanded until May 30 for the murder of Sgt. Robert Wilson, 30, at Camp Borden Thursday night.

Wilson, promoted to sergeant at the age of 22, died from a point blank shotgun blast as he sat chatting in the sergeants' mess after dinner.

The shooting occurred an hour after a man walked into a Barrie barber shop and attempted to shoot Mrs. Leonard Demille, but the shotgun misfired. He forced the woman outside, poked his gun through the window and fired but injured no one.

An hour later a car sped through the Camp Borden gates without stopping. A man entered the mess and shot Wilson down from three feet away, dropped the gun and walked to the bar to order a drink. He was grabbed and held by bystanders.

Junior Tattoo To Feature Top Twirler

A junior tattoo by more than 300 youthful bandmen, marchers and dancers will be sponsored at Memorial Arena by Victoria Kinsmen Club June 1.

It will be a local version of the Greater Vancouver junior tattoo, organized two years ago by police drum major Don Bellamy, and will use Victoria Girls' Drill Team, and the Chinatown Lions drum and bugle band.

Featured will be 22-year-old blonde strutter Pamela Carr and her troupe of baton twirlers. The Vancouver girl has been twirling since the age of 10 and holds the title of North American champion.

Main band taking part is the Junior Optimist Pipe Band of Vancouver, claiming to be the youngest pipe band in the world.

BEEN AROUND

Its members, averaging 11 years, have played in Portland, Reno, Los Angeles, Disneyland, Hollywood, Marineland of the Pacific, Santa Monica and Hawaii, and are due to play in the opening parade of the Honolulu state fair June 23.

North Vancouver Sea Cadet band and guard have been with the tattoo two years and have played in many parts of the Pacific Northwest.

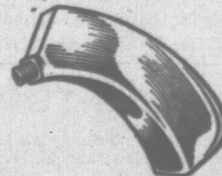

Vancouver Highland Dancers and the North Vancouver Boys' and Girls' Brass Band complete the roster of performers in the 2½-hour show culminated by a grand finale.

There will be two shows, at 2 and 7 p.m. and proceeds will go toward Kinsmen community projects.

Remanded

CRANBROOK (CP)—Moses Jimmy was found guilty Thursday by an Assize Court jury on a reduced charge of non-capital murder in the December 19 shooting of Margaret Mahseelah, 27, of Polson, Montana. Jimmy was remanded to the end of the assizes for sentence.

He added the hope that "marshalling of parade units will be better next year."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said some breakdowns and other factors caused the delays.

Ald. Austin Curtis said the city should have the decorative flags and bunting cleaned for next year's celebrations because they were a "disgrace to the city."

Council voted to send letters of appreciation to all groups and visiting units that participated in the celebrations.

Aldermen threw out a traffic committee recommendation that a curbside space for five buses be established near the Vancouver Island Coach Lines' bus terminal to serve out-of-town charter buses. Several pointed out that all other transportation companies had to provide their own terminals and the city should not make its streets into a terminal for one company.

Aldermen authorized purchase of the former Chaplin Funeral Home property on Quadra opposite Pioneer Park for $20,000. It is considered a key property in the proposed beautification of the Cathedral Hill precinct.

Council refused to permit a church to be built on residential lots on Joan Crescent at Fort Street after three nearby residents protested it would create a noise and traffic problem. The application had been made by Jehovah's Witnesses.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow pointed out the city only six weeks ago refused to give tax exemption to a property in the neighborhood belonging to another religious denomination.

A 3 per cent wage boost—totalling about $4,000—was awarded department heads and professional staff to maintain the differential between them and lower civic ranks.

Aldermen authorized purchase of the former Chaplin Funeral Home property on Quadra opposite Pioneer Park for $20,000. It is considered a key property in the proposed beautification of the Cathedral Hill precinct.

Legal Status for Chan?

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration Minister Guy Favreau hinted today that legal immigrant status may be given to Weldon Chan, a 43-year-old Chinese who has been hiding since a 1959 attempt to deport him.

He told the Commons that the question of giving landed immigrant status to Chan is "presently under serious consideration."

He hoped to be able to give a report on the matter around the middle of next week.

Mr. Favreau made the statement in reply to a question by Ron Basford (L—Vancouver-Burrard).

Ada Barner admits that last year she spent a day and a half in hospital, during which interlude from her post as matron of B.C. Protestant Orphanage she was visited by some of her older girls.

What Mrs. Barner chooses to leave out is the fuss these teen-agers made over her.

They wept, they worried. They did and re-did her grey hair until her scalp ached worse than her gashed hand. I'm also told that when she returned to the Orphanage, she was welcomed as if fresh out of orbit.

Listen to her now, in her reception room, surrounded by the picture faces of her children past and present—the boys and girls from broken homes whom Ada Barner has mothered:

"Some have come closer to us than others, but all are loved, and missed when they leave us. We've never had a delinquent or a problem child. They come here, see how our other children behave, and by degrees fit themselves into the same pattern."

(True; but I doubt that Ada Barner recognizes a delinquent as such. What she does see is a hurt child who needs her care.)

Our boys seem to marry the nicest girls. We have a lot of happily married girls, too. They're making good wives and mothers.

I remember when a returned missionary came out to talk to us. He got his eye on our Jenny and never took it off her. That's Jenny in her wedding gown, cutting the cake.

(Joan will figure in a wedding picture on Mrs. Barner's wall one day. She's 19 and pretty, a high school senior. Thirteen years ago, her parents deserted her. "All my love," she's inscribed on the photograph on Mrs. Barner's mantel.)

Then there was our Sandy. When he left us for a job, he felt he should repay what he got out of the home. For two years, he sent us $10 a month. A great many of our boys and girls send the home money. They say they want to help other children as they were helped.

We've never been broke, although we've seen some very hard days. There's never been a time, though, when a child was kept out because his father or mother couldn't pay.

(Firemen, architects, carpenters, cooks, pilots, both air force and civilian. Elevator operators and electricians. One notary public, three ministers, 10 school teachers. Loggers, businessmen, sailors, farmers, painters and plumbers. Among the girls, teachers, lab technicians and nurses both practical and registered. Ada Barner keeps track of them, rejoicing in their successes. They come back to her, often bringing their children.

These youngsters from secure homes call her "Granny."

"You ask me what brings children to us. There are many factors. But if I had to pick one, I'd say too-early marriages. We try to reconcile the couples. But we don't often succeed.

"Did you notice the little silver wall-plate among the pictures? That's in memory of our Willie. He was a casualty in the last war. He left his estate, which was $1,000, and his personal belongings, to what he called 'his only home.'"

(The old country trace in Ada Barner's voice isn't Scottish—I guessed wrong there—but Liverpool English. She came to Canada as a child. Her age, she insists, is her own business.)

"They're good children, and kind to one another. The girls are clothes-conscious, of course. Sometimes they switch clothes so they'll be able to go to school in a different outfit. When one of them has a special occasion coming up, they make it a point to see she looks her nicest."

Actually, Mrs. Barner's age doesn't signify. To her children, she remains ageless.

She's a remarkable woman, this mother to 500. Victoria has recognized her quality by awarding her the Good Citizen's Medal in 1955 and the Centennial Medal in 1959.

But proud though Ada Barner is of her medals, it matters more to her that her children, no matter how old or where they are, remember her with love.

'Sounds of the Trail' Make Happy Listening

By JOHN MIKA

Sixty-two riders filed by on their mounts. Hooves clip-clopped on pavement, hit gravelled shoulders with muffled thuds.

Leather creaked. Youths chattered. Horses sneezed. Watching cows bellowed, sheep stared and ponies whinied from their pastures. That's how the 100-mile ride sounded this morning as the troop moved out.

The riders were strung out a quarter-mile behind trail boss Merle Rimmer as they left the Beaver Lake marshalling point and travelled towards their first lunch stop in the Saanich Highlands.

Four days of riding through wooded hills lay ahead—requiring a 25-mile-a-day pace over a selected route laid out by Stan Walt, chairman of a committee of the Garden City Horsemen's Club sponsoring the event. Many of the riders and horses were veterans of a similar four-day ride held as a centennial event last year, but there were quite a number of newcomers, too, mostly youths.

"No problems and no drop-outs," reported the trail boss as they left.

In the van were veteran horsemen Ted Hamer, show rider Madeline Cuppage and Dr. and Mrs. C. G. MacKenzie of Duncan.

The route will take the party through the Highlands, Goldstream watershed and Leedstown areas.

Trucks hauling hay and oats for horses and grub for the riders will meet them at prepared cook camps along the way.

CHILDREN HAIL 24th WITH SONG

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

In a warm blend of color, more than a thousand Victoria schoolchildren assembled in front of the Legislative Buildings today to commemorate Queen Victoria's birthday and to reaffirm their allegiance to Queen Elizabeth and the Commonwealth.

For the first time in many years, the colorful ceremony organized annually by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire was held on the actual anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth—May 24, 1819.

Brilliant sunshine, tempered with a light breeze, enriched the uniforms of service cadets, Scouts, Guides, Cub Scouts and junior pipers as the youngsters marched to their positions.

Sharp cries of command mingled with the skirl of pipes, the rattle of drums and the full brass notes of the S. J. Willis Junior High School Band, mounted on the steps of the Legislature with hundreds of Grade 6 students from Greater Victoria schools.

A staccato fanfare of trumpets signalled the march of the IODE standard bearers under Municipal Standard Bearer Mrs. Harold Menzies.

The women, uniformly dressed in white and carrying standards, formed up at the Queen Victoria monument and paraded slowly up the centre path while the S. J. Willis band, conducted by Howard Denike, played "Land of Hope and Glory."

Spread over the green lawns of the Legislature were the trimly-formed ranks of cadets of the Army, Navy and Air Force and the St. John Ambulance Brigade, with scouts, cubs, guides and brownies.

About 200 spectators watched the ceremony while civil servants looked down from office windows.

The children on the steps formed a choir conducted by H. J. Bigsby.

Prayers were offered by Rev. A. C. Hamill, representing Greater Victoria Ministerial Association, and Mrs. Peter Bell, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Victoria, IODE, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. George E. Tait of Toronto, national education secretary, IODE.

"May God's richest blessing attend our sovereign queen on her official birthday," Mrs. Tait told the children.

She urged them to emulate the noble example set by Queen Elizabeth and her predecessor, Queen Victoria.

"Remember to speak the truth, be brave to do what is right, study to train the mind, keep your bodies strong and healthy and thus grow in favor with God and man."

"Be proud to be a Canadian and Canada will be proud of you."

Mrs. Tait said "it is a remarkable fact that we are assembled here today to salute an English queen who died 62 years ago."

APPECIATION DAY

"Victoria Day is a time for all of us to appreciate the privileges we enjoy as citizens of Canada and as members of that great brotherhood within the commonwealth of nations."

The S. J. Willis band played while the IODE standard bearers returned to the Queen Victoria monument for the placing of wreaths by flower girls organized by Miss Jessie G. Wallace.

Marshals for the parade were W. J. Orchard, I. Dawson and J. T. Bruce.

GERRY SAMMON

Councillor Dies on Trip To London

Coun. Gerald K. Sammon of Esquimalt, died suddenly in London, England, Thursday night; it was learned here today.

Mr. Sammon, 53, had recently attended a convention of the Department of Veterans' Affairs Employees National Association, of which he was president, in Ottawa.

It is believed he had gone to Britain on association business at conclusion of the convention.

Cause of death was a heart attack.

Mr. Sammon, chief laboratory technician at the DVA hospital, was on holiday at the time of his death, and was to have reported for work again Tuesday morning.

He had been a member of Esquimalt Council since 1953, except for the year 1957.

DEDICATED

Reeve A. C. Wurtele today described Mr. Sammon as "one of our senior councillors, and one who was dedicated to the affairs of his municipality."

"His death is a great loss to the council and to Esquimalt," Mr. Wurtele said.

This year Coun. Sammon was on the sports centre commission and on the parks committee, of which he was chairman.

He also was a member of the inter-municipal committee, and served on the board of St. Joseph's Hospital and the Metropolitan Board of Health.

JOINED IN 1947

A lab technician in the U.S. and Canada since 1928, Mr. Sammon joined the Department of Veterans' Affairs in 1947.

He served overseas with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps during the Second World War, attaining the rank of WO2.

Mr. Sammon is survived by the widow, Olive, and a daughter, Fern, a student nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital, at home, 104 Fernhill. Another daughter, Geraldine, lives in California.

Two-Year-Old Crimes Draw Six Months

The long arm of the law caught up with Spencer Foley in city police court today.

And he failed in his attempt to brush it aside by charging, "I'm being persecuted."

Foley was sentenced to two six-month concurrent terms for offences he committed more than two years ago.

Foley admitted obtaining two watches, worth $68.25 and $62.95, from city stores by using worthless cheques March 23, 1961. But he told Magistrate William Ostle he had been sentenced for these offences at Vancouver, May 30, 1961.

NO CONVICTION

However, the clerk of Vancouver magistrate's court, W. W. Edwards, testified today that the court records there did not show any conviction of Foley for these offences.

Said Foley: "I'm being persecuted." He told the court that Victoria police should have charged him with the offences when he was released from Oakalla instead of waiting until now.

Foley had been sentenced on false pretences charges at Vancouver in 1961, but the charges did not include the offences in Victoria.

MONTE ROBERTS LOOKS AT THE SWIFTSURE

(Second of Two Articles)

The course for the annual Swiftsure ocean racing classic, as laid down by the Pacific International Yacht Association, with the avowed intention of separating the men from the boys, does indeed make the sea men see the sea.

At the 68 mile mark, the contenders will reach what is known as the Swiftsure Mark. This was formerly a lighthouse anchored to warn deep sea vessels of the Swiftsure shoal (it's at 48 degrees 33 minutes north, 125 degrees west, if you're ever navigating the Queen Mary in that area). The lighthouse has bowed to progress, and has been replaced by a powerful radar and radio beacon, plus visual light-house, on Vancouver Island.

The lightship's role as outward marker is now played by an anchored vessel. After the yachts round the Swiftsure Mark, they start the run (or trot or walk or stagger—remember those winds, tides and currents) to the finishing line, drawn between the south end of the CNR docks at Ogden Point, and McLoughlin Point at the entrance to Victoria Harbor—a distance of 68.2 miles, for a total race course of 136.2 miles.

It is anybody's guess how long this "expert" guessed 26 hours for the first boat home. First boat across the finish line took 25 hours 59 minutes. This "expert" quit while he was ahead.)

This year, the start of the race will be at zero nine three zero (the expert never says 9:30 a.m.) on Saturday, June 1.

The entries will scoot, scud, speed, or drift in a roughly southwest direction (roughly is a good word) past Race Rocks (that's the big lighthouse guarding the narrowest point in Juan de Fuca Strait, out

There is protection in the rules for those who object to spending a month or so at sea.

At least one boat must cross the finish line in 60 hours or less. Otherwise, the winner will be the boat which reached the Swiftsure mark first.

Any tub which does not complete the 136.2 miles in 74 hours is recorded as Did Not Finish, and serve him right.

The times referred to above are elapsed, or overall times, which brings us to corrected, or handicap times.

I recommend that all Instant Ocean Yacht Racing Experts pass over this place with an airy gesture, meaning, "Oh, I know the big boats have to give away time to the little boats."

This is true enough to get the instant expert off the hook in explaining how handicaps are arrived at on a basis of sail area, waterline length, length overall and all like that there.

The handicaps, of course, aren't known as handicaps at all. They are called Time Allowances.

Last year the Seattle yawl Maruffa was first boat home (what else is new?) in 29 hours 16 minutes 46 seconds.

Rollback Predicted For Sugar

By GORDON BELL
TIMES BUSINESS EDITOR

The "bubble may have burst" in the frenzied trading on the world sugar market, according to Herb Kennedy, manager of the Victoria branch of James Richardson & Sons.

Mr. Kennedy, who has been watching the futures market in sugar closely since the upward spiral began, pointed out that in the New York "world market" Thursday, contracts on future delivery of sugar went up the maximum of 50 points (25 cents) and then dropped the maximum at the close of trading.

Today the market dropped another 50 points at New York and the feeling is, Mr. Kennedy said, that it will do the same Saturday.

In trading today only 60 contracts (a contract is 112,000 pounds) changed hands on the world market and 59 in the U.S. domestic futures market.

NO BUYERS

About 2,500 contracts were offered in both markets with no buyers taking them up.

Mr. Kennedy noted that while the basic reason for soaring sugar prices has been a world shortage, the surplus of demand over supply has undoubtedly been cut now by the record high prices which have discouraged consumption.

In addition, the futures market is probably taking into account that a new sugar crop will be coming into the world market soon and there is no indication that it will be affected, as was last year's, by bad weather.

SPECULATION BLAMED

Much of the price rise, Mr. Kennedy believes, was caused by speculation—not so much in the commodity market but by sugar producing countries holding back on supplies in the hope of getting increasingly better prices for the product.

If the futures market collapses, however, the producing countries will rush to put their sugar into the market at the best possible prices, and before the new crop is due.

This would effectively end the shortage situation and bring prices back closer to the norm of the past few years.

Activity on the world market will not be felt immediately in Canadian domestic prices but an effect could be apparent within a matter of weeks.

Meanwhile, in Victoria, retail prices have stayed steady at $1.77 for 10 pounds for about 10 days, despite increases of more than $2 per hundred in wholesale prices at the Vancouver refinery.

However, with retail stocks getting low, a number of grocers predicted their prices could rise to around $2 for the 10-pound bag unless there is immediate relief on present wholesale prices.

HOLD OFF

City soft drink manufacturers say they are going to avoid any price increases which would be reflected at the retail level if they possibly can.

They were pleased at the prospect of prices coming down again and one bottler said he would hold off at least a month no matter what the market did.

In Ottawa, Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier observed that the rising price of sugar "has not been out of line with increased costs for the basic raw materials." He said Canadian refiners have increased their prices slightly less than the cost of raw sugar imports.

However, Mr. Chevrier told the House of Commons Thursday that he has ordered an inquiry under the Combines Act.

In Winnipeg, Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin announced his provincial government would also investigate the sugar situation.

Q—What are the solids in milk? R.D.

A—If you mean milk from cows, solid content varies depending on the herd. In the over-all picture, milk contains 3.9 per cent fat and 8.5 per cent serum solids.

These serum solids break down into 2.5 per cent casein or the white part of milk containing minerals and proteins; .7 per cent albumin which forms part of milk's mineral content; 5.1 per cent lactose or milk sugar and .7 per cent ash.

DEAR ABBY...

It Is The Problem!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a lovely, adorable girl who is 16 years younger than I am. (This could be the problem.) This charming lady says she loves me, but her mother would never approve of our marriage because of the age difference. She is devoted to her family and would never marry against their wishes. I waited 10 years after my last marriage before considering marrying again, and believe I have found the girl. I am 38 and she is 22. I insist on an open courtship, but she refuses to be seen with me. Is age that important? Do you think she loves me, or is she just being kind to an "old man?" How can I win her?

DEAR ABBY: When people drop in unexpectedly late in the afternoon, are invited to stay for dinner but refuse (saying they have another appointment) and yet continue to visit well past dinner preparation time, is it possible to start preparing dinner? This has happened several times. Yesterday the company left two hours after our usual dinner time.

DEAR ABBY: In the two years I have been a widow I have learned more than in all the years I was married. I never realized there were so many frightened, unsure married women around. If I need someone to help with the household chores or heavy work, I look in the classified ads. I'd rather pay $10 an hour than ask another woman's husband to do any favors.

DEAR ABBY: Make sure it's a gleam in his eye—not just the sun hitting his bifocals. Get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby and send a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

When Weather Is 'Cooking' Here's Way to Stay Cool

By PENNY SAVER

The weather may be lovely but most housewives will agree that it certainly isn't the weather for cooking. So, whatever the occasion this weekend, take Penny's advice and visit the local bakeshop I was in this morning.

If you're going to make it a picnic, you'll want things that travel well. Delicious ribbon cake which is wrapped in cellophane to preserve freshness is $1. It's three layers are chocolate, strawberry and vanilla with cream icing between and the whole is encased in marzipan.

Tarts made of puff pastry and filled with almond paste and pineapple and topped with a cherry are another "must" for very special parties. They are 12 cents each.

If a tea party is on your activity list, shop has large variety of petit fours at 90 cents a dozen. Your guests may fight (in a ladylike way naturally) about which kind they want but they won't complain that there was no choice!

If guests are visitors to Victoria, what else could you serve them but "Beacon Hills". These are shortbread tarts filled with almond paste and topped with an almond. They are eight cents apiece.

Maybe you've got a cocktail party on for tomorrow evening. Shop can accommodate that, too. Specially made cocktail cookies are always available and are 40 cents for a quarter pound. Made of salty puff pastry, some have an almond on top, others are filled with cheese or are just plain.

For that birthday in the office, there are homemade chocolates in round plastic boxes topped with a gay bow. Boxes will be filled with one kind or a variety, as you wish. Price for a pound is $1.80.

Forget the calories and call Penny at 382-3131 if you want to find out where she shopped.

French Lace Used for Bridal Gown

A short-length gown of white French lace over peau de soie was worn by Isabel Margaret Chisholm when she exchanged vows with James Duncan McKerracher in Oaklands Chapel. Lace medallions highlighted the shoulder-length veil of nylon tulle that misted from a lace coronet. White heather, lily of the valley, stephanotis and cymbidium orchids were in her bouquet. Jewelry was a single strand of pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom.

F. G. Hamilton heard the vows that united the daughter of Mrs. S. Chisholm, 2623 Mt. Stephen Avenue, and the late Rainey Chisholm, and the son of Mrs. J. McKerracher, 2519 Roseberry Avenue, and the late D. McKerracher.

WHITE AND MAUVE

Mauve and white lilac were used in decoration and pews were marked with white wedding bells, tied with mauve ribbons. The groom's sister, Mrs. C. Padgett sang "O Perfect Love." Organist was Miss Jeanne Inrig.

John Thomson gave the bride in marriage.

Miss Dorothy Jean Padgett, the groom's niece was maid of honor in gown of yellow em-

A kitchen and linen shower was held recently in honor of June bride-elect Miss Carol Carpenter at the home of Mrs. H. N. Patterson. Hostesses were Miss Dianne Patterson and Miss Carolyn Robertson. The bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. J. L. Carpenter and grandmother, Mrs. W. Carpenter, were presented with pink carnation corsages.

Gifts were in a pair of pillow cases. Games were enjoyed, the winners being the bride-elect and Miss Donnelle Dreaper. Mrs. E. H. Lohrner and Mrs. A. Taylor presided at the tea table. Others present were Mrs. H. Savage, Mrs. A. Sabiston, Mrs. D. E. Campbell, Mrs. L. Robertson, Mrs. D. W. Dreaper, Mrs. W. Kitley, Mrs. S. Cornish, Mrs. W. H. Martindale, Mrs. J. H. Taylor, Mrs. C. A. broided nylon sheer over taffeta and yellow satin tulle. Junior bridesmaid, Miss Sandra Inrig wore similar dress and tulle in pink.

Both had silver lockets, gifts of the bride, and carried colonial bouquets of mauve sweet peas centred with rosebuds to match their gowns.

Don McKerracher was best man for his uncle and ushers were G. A. Inrig and N. Yourit-chuk.

H. Simmers proposed the toast at a reception in the chapel auditorium. Sweetheart rosebuds topped the four-tier wedding cake, made by Mrs. C. Padgett and decorated by Mrs. R. Powell. Pink candles added to setting.

Master of ceremonies was Charles Ellington.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Banff, the bride donned a navy blue dress and hat, white boucle coat, red accessories and corsage of red carnations and white stephanotis. On return the couple will make their home at 2519 Roseberry Avenue.

What's a Woman Without a Wig?

By PAT DUFOUR

Pity the poor woman who "hasn't a wig to wear!" According to Mrs. Kenneth Elstyn, Vancouver, they're disappearing rapidly. Since she and her husband went into the wig business last June their sales have been "in the thousands" for British Columbia alone.

Here on a three-day visit, the mainland crusader makes you feel that to be caught without a wig is comparable to going out on a big date without make-up.

Wearing an attractive light ash wig, she hardly looks old enough to have the two youngsters that round out the Elstyn household.

"But," she insists, "I'm no glamor gal—just an ordinary plain housewife with fine dark hair that only holds a set for two days."

She first got the yen to pioneer in the wig field when she and her husband were holidaying at Palm Springs in Florida.

QUICK TRANSFORMATION

"I'd see elderly women in the pool, splashing around with their hair in a mess. In the evening they'd dress for dinner with immaculate coiffures. When I found out that wigs were the answer, right away I wanted to give other women a chance to 'go glamorous.'"

In just under a year Mr. and Mrs. Elstyn have built up a business that's the largest of its kind in western Canada. And she feels it's in the field of a vital service rather than a salesman's dream.

"There's tremendous satisfaction in being able to persuade a woman to jump that first hurdle and get her first wig, especially when she brings it back a few months later, cut and styled to suit her—and proud as punch!"

Having never been addicted to much makeup, Mrs. Elstyn relies on wigs for that touch of glamor that every woman desires.

Wig upkeep is simple. Cheaper than weekly professional care of your own hair reports this convincing advocate.

NEEDS LITTLE CARE

"Your wig should be professionally cut and styled when you first get it. Then, you can go two or three months before taking it into the salon again for a set."

Only differences in wigs made of synthetic rather than real hair is price and time they last.

HALIBUT AND ASPARAGUS

One pound halibut, 2 cups milk, scalded, 1 cup cooked green peas, 1½ cups (about 1 pound) cooked asparagus cut into 1½-inch lengths, 3 tablespoons butter, melted, 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon melted butter, ¼ cup finely grated cheese.

Add fish to scalded milk and heat to simmering temperature. Do not let boil. Cover and simmer for several minutes, or until fish will flake when tested with a fork and has lost its watery look, becoming very white in color.

Drain. Measure and reserve 2 cups poaching liquid. Break fish into bite-sized chunks, re-greening and discarding any skin or bone. Place fish in a greased 1½-quart casserole. Cover with cooked peas and asparagus. In a saucepan combine 3 tablespoons melted butter, flour and seasoning. Add hot poaching liquid gradually. Cook and stir until thickened. Spoon over vegetables and fish. Combine bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon melted butter, and cheese. Spread over top of dish. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 deg. F., for about 15 minutes, or until browned and bubbly. Makes 4 servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Balanced Menus Are Clue To Weight Gaining Problem

Q.—"Is it possible to order literature concerning weight reduction for a club I've started? I would like to write you about our group. We call ourselves 'The Countdowns.' An article in your column inspired me to start this group. We have eight members and have lost around 82 pounds among us, with our physician's approval of course. We have lots of wonderful ideas but I won't write you about them now because I know you are very busy."

A.—I am busy but I think it would be great if you and your club members would share your ideas with other readers. I will be glad to send you or any other readers some of my leaflets if you will let me know how many copies you want. Please send stamps to cover postage. Also, there are many books about reducing safely available in libraries and book stores.

Q.—"I have a problem. Although it is exactly the opposite of a more popular problem I feel that its effects are worse."

"In July of this coming summer, I am going to take a trip to a dude ranch and if I don't gain some weight before then, I'm not going to wear a bathing suit or shorts for the whole time (two weeks)."

"I am 15 years old, have a small frame and weigh about 87 pounds. My measurements are bust 32 inches, and hips 22. That last figure is where my problem lies. My hips just aren't there! My legs are not especially thin."

"As for my eating habits, I have a very small capacity. I hardly eat any dairy products, or eggs and do not drink much milk. I do eat all vegetables and a lot of meat."

"I am willing to eat almost anything, do any exercises or perform any unheard of magic just to gain weight. Help! I am desperate!"

A.—First let's analyze the situation. You did not give me your height but with a weight of 87 pounds at the age of 15 you probably are quite a lot underweight. I wonder if you measured about the largest part of your hips?

First, the meat and vegetables in your diet are wonderful sources of health but you may be filling up on them and therefore neglecting other foods which are also important in a well-balanced diet.

Do drink at least two glasses of whole milk daily. Add some chocolate syrup to it or sugar and vanilla for a milkshake. Add some bread, potatoes, cereals and citrus fruit juice to your diet.

Ask your doctor about taking vitamin B complex. Most important, don't stuff. Divide your daily food into four small meals and a couple of little snacks rather than three large meals. Get plenty of sleep and indulge in mild exercise such as swimming or walking.

If any of my readers would like to have my leaflet on relaxing exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 24 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

IODE Works for Canada and Its Peoples; Voluntary, Patriotic

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire (IODE), organized in 1900, is now one of the largest voluntary, patriotic women's organizations in Canada.

This proud boast was made by Mrs. Peter L. Robinson, national president of the order, as she sat in her sunny suite in the Empress Hotel Thursday afternoon.

Here from Toronto to conduct the 63rd annual national meeting, which opens Saturday evening and concludes late next Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Robinson continued:

"Our aim is to stimulate patriotism through education and service; to foster unity within the Commonwealth; to provide an efficient organization for prompt and united action in times of emergency and to work for Canada and its peoples."

The national president pointed out that the IODE was the first women's organization to have as a project the building of community halls in the Far North.

"I officially opened the pioneer one at Probus Bay in the eastern Arctic in the summer of 1960; the second in the western Arctic at Tuktoyaktuk last December. A third is now being constructed in the central Arctic at Baker Lake."

Founder of the Order 63 years ago, was Mrs. Clark Murray of Montreal.

HEALTHY GROWTH

"Today it includes 974 chapters from the Yukon to Newfoundland and more than 28,000 women who voluntarily raise and disburse over one million dollars annually in all levels of education and in the field of service," says the national president.

Mrs. Robinson came to Victoria on Wednesday with a number of national officers. Each plane and boat since then has brought other members and delegates. When opening ceremonies are held on Saturday evening it is expected the Crystal ballroom at the hotel will be filled.

National executive committee meeting is being held today; First and Second World War memorial committees met on Thursday and on Saturday there will be conferences for organizing and public relations, Echoes, services at home and abroad, world affairs, educational and immigration and citizenship, which all members may attend.

Official opening ceremonies commence at 8:30 Saturday evening and main business meeting on Monday at 9:30 a.m.

DR. KELSEY VISITS HER BIRTHPLACE

Following last week's annual dinner of the UBC Alumni Association in Vancouver, where she was honored with presentation of the alumni's first award of merit for work in the field of drug administration in the United States, Dr. Frances Kelsey spent the holiday weekend at Cowichan Bay.

The distinguished Canadian came to Vancouver Island in the yacht "Invader," fully manned and equipped for the weekend cruise by the owner, Mrs. Ronald Graham.

The yacht tied up at Cowichan Bay and Dr. Kelsey renewed acquaintances with many old friends. Her family once lived near Cobble Hill, and she was born there.

Accompanying her on the cruise were a brother John and a sister-in-law Mrs. Stewart Oldham. Another sister Monica, whom she tried to contact in Victoria was visiting friends for the holiday weekend and missed the reunion.

Looking like fashion plates are, left to right, Karen Gilling and Bendie Eilertsen, both of Victoria High School; Ev Gregory, Mt. Douglas High School, and Eileen Rente, Victoria High School. They will be among the Grade 11 and 12 students from Greater Victoria, Sooke and Sidney who will model garments made in home economic classes at a show to be held in the Central Junior High School, Saturday at 2 p.m. Prizes will be awarded for winning outfits. Show is being sponsored by the Y's Menettes and the Victoria Daily Times.

Former Victorians Exchange Vows

Vancouver United Church was scene of wedding that united two former Victorians, Joanne Alyda Bennett and John Malcolm Anthony Shanks. Rev. T. T. Oliver officiated at the service. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. H. Macroe of Cowell River and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Shanks, of Victoria.

EXQUISITE GOWN

Entering the church on the arm of her uncle, A. A. Frederickson the bride wore a white peau de sole gown that featured a scoop neckline, bolero bodice and skirt, styled straight in front and extending back to a bouffant bustle.

A multi-tiered shoulder-length veil of illusion tulle misted from a pearl tiara. Jack O'Leary roses and lily of the valley were in the bouquet. Only jewelry was a "lovers' knot" pin of tiny seed pearls that had been worn by the groom's mother and his paternal grandmother on their wedding days.

Bell-skirted gowns in frosted peppermint green peau de sole and toning headpieces were worn by matron of honor, Mrs. F. King; bridesmatron, Mrs. V. Frederickson and bridesmaid, Miss Susan Whiteson. Each attendant carried three white gladioli.

Michael Shanks was best man and ushers were John Sutherland and Ian Dirom. Organist was Barry Cliffe, a friend of the groom.

A lily of the valley nosegay topped the three-tier wedding cake, made by bride's aunt, Vancouver.

Mrs. Alida Hill, which centred the head table at a reception in the Stanley Park sports Tearoom. Michael Mendria, Courtenay, proposed the toast.

OUT-OF-TOWN

Guests attended from Kamloops, Powell River, Courtenay, Victoria, New Westminster, Port Coquitlam, Royston, Beaver Cove and Merritt.

Leaving on a motoring trip to southern points, the bride wore a sheath dress in antique white with matching jacket, trimmed in black velvet. A black chiffon picture hat and black accessories completed her outfit.

Newlyweds will live in West Vancouver.

Candlelit Ceremony

Dogwood blossoms and lilacs decorated Douglas Street Baptist Church for the candlelit ceremony that united Sandra Dawn Bishop and Harry Tyson. Rev. C. Barner officiated and candlelighters were the Misses Sandra Campbell and Ruth Foster.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bishop, 1297 Camrose Crescent, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Tyson, 3815 Jennifer Road.

Miss Miriam Barner sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the evening service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white nylon organza over taffeta that had a tiny bow as highlight on the fitted bodice and sleeves ending in lily points. Seed pearls shimmered in the single row of lace that edged the centre front of gown from neck to hemline. Skirt was belled. The bouffant lace veil was held by a pearl coronet. White rosebuds and lily of the valley were in the cascade bouquet. Identical gowns of coral pink nylon organza over taffeta, toning whimsies and cascade bouquets of white carnations and stephanotis were choice of matron of honor, Mrs. Ken Stewart and bridesmaids, the Misses Arden McAlpine and Julie Veitch.

Don Tyson was best man for his brother and ushers were Jim Mills and Ken Stewart.

Charlie Bishop proposed the toast to his niece at a reception in the Tally-Ho Travelodge.

The great-aunt of the bride, Miss Elsie Cook came from Calgary for the wedding. Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Mawle of Port Alberni and Mrs. R. Hicks, Cloverdale, B.C.

Gas Men Play Waiting Game

DUNCAN—An uneasy calm settled over the gas price war front in Duncan today as service station operators awaited instructions from oil company sales representatives before reducing their prices.

So far three Duncan-Mill Bay service stations have dropped their prices five cents a gallon.

They are selling gas at 40.9 and 44.9 cents a gallon for regular and premium grades. This is in line with Victoria prices.

Other service stations are expected to lower their prices as soon as they receive instructions from oil companies.

DUNCAN—A major study of education costs is needed in B.C., Cowichan school trustee Wilf Beck told the Junior Chamber of Commerce at a recent meeting.

Mr. Beck said $145,000,000 will be spent on education this year by the provincial government. Total of $8,000,000 is spent daily in Canada on education.

Although B.C. teachers receive the highest wages, he said qualified teachers are scarce.

DUNCAN—Jaycee Fred Walker will chair a special committee for a beauty contest during the Cowichan fall fair in September.

Attending the annual provincial Jaycee convention at Prince George May 30 to June 1, will be: John Ellis, incoming president; Jack Prasloski, Bob Berry, George Schmidt and Colin Soles.

The local Jaycee installation banquet will be held July 20.

DUNCAN—Funeral services were held at Hirst Funeral Chapel today for Mrs. Laura Smith, a 36-year resident of Duncan, who died in King's Daughters' Hospital Wednesday. She was 77.

She is survived by her husband, Arthur, Cowichan Station; two sons, Mathew Summerfield, Vancouver, and George Summerfield, Dallas, Texas; a daughter, Mrs. Leonore Watson, Duncan; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

DUNCAN—Queen Margaret's School Association is sponsoring a fun fair June 1, from 2 to 8 p.m., at the school, and a Heatherbelle Dog Theatre production at the Duncan Elementary School gymnasium at 8 p.m.

NANAIMO—The ferry across Nanaimo harbor to Newcastle Island will begin summer operations June 15—if the department of highways can get someone to operate it.

Tenders for operation have been called and will be received to May 30. Conditions require a regular schedule on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday and set fares for adults and children.

Newcastle Island is a provincial government park.

QUALICUM BEACH—The local Chamber of Commerce has agreed to support residents of surrounding areas in their bid to remove long-distance phone charges to Qualicum Beach.

Residents of Bowser, Horne Lake and Qualicum Bay complain that 150 subscribers in these areas have to pay long-distance charges to call the nearest emergency service or shopping centre.

Some of them live within eight miles of Qualicum and all live within 15 miles of Qualicum Beach.

The chamber pledged its support after a special committee said they have to pay between 30 and 35 cents every time they pick up a phone to call police, fire department, ambulance or doctor, or to order groceries from Qualicum Beach or Parksville.

Ratepayers will vote on the project on June 22.

The present science room is inadequately equipped to meet the requirements of the prescribed science courses.

Defence of Europe Certain — Stikker

OTTAWA (CP) — NATO Secretary-General Dirk Stikker called today for an end to talk about whether the United States will go to the defence of Western Europe should Russia launch an attack.

It is an "absolute fact" that the U.S. would respond to an attack on Europe, he told a press conference at the end of the three-day NATO ministerial conference here.

Mr. Stikker's words could be taken as an indirect comment on fears reported held by the French government that the U.S. might not go to Europe's aid if it meant all-out war with Russia and nuclear bombardment of U.S. territory.

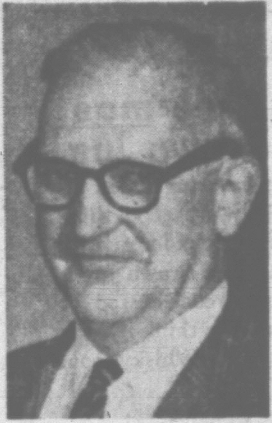

Replying to questions regarding Cuba, Mr. Stikker said NATO consultative machinery applies to all regions in the world where danger may arise.

NATO COMMUNIQUE

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The NATO ministerial communiqué issued today at the end of the three-day conference approves "the steps taken to organize the nuclear forces assigned or to be assigned to the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe."

NEW CHAIRMAN

Director of the biological station of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada at Nanaimo, until he became deputy minister at Ottawa in April, Dr. A. W. H. Needler of Vancouver, has been elected chairman of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission. He will fill the unexpired term of the late chairman, George Clark, who died during a commission meeting in Tokyo, Feb. 13.

Dief Irked; MPs in Dark On NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker protested in the Commons today that Canadian government attitudes on questions before the current NATO ministerial meeting are being denied to Parliament but given to the press.

Since the NATO meeting began Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker said, Parliament has received no information on the stand taken by the government on an Atlantic alliance nuclear force.

"I'm informed the press is regularly being given information by the external affairs minister (Paul Martin) and the defence minister (Paul Hellyer) and this information is not made available to Parliament," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

This was a derogation of the rights of Parliament. "Controlled news is something that should not exist as against Parliament."

Pope Shows Improvement

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John's health continued to show improvement today and he did a bit of work before beginning a nine-day spiritual retreat, Vatican officials said.

The officials said the condition of the 81-year-old Roman Catholic ruler was satisfactory and that he clearly was showing a steady gain of energy.

But the officials avoided speaking of a complete recovery. It was clear that there still was concern that he might suffer a relapse again.

Brown Held by Rio Police Will be Returned to Canada

Loomis Guard Had $2,200 When Arrested

Special to the Times

VANCOUVER — Rio de Janeiro police kidnapped Loomis guard Douglas John Brown early today and are holding him incommunicado in an attempt to send him secretly back to Canada.

The Vancouver Sun learned that Brown was arrested in a plush hotel suite at 4 a.m. Rio time, after a brief fling in Brazil's international playground.

He is being held secretly in an attempt to circumvent the law of habeas corpus until he can be placed aboard a United States-bound plane.

Rio Police Chief Gustavo Borgus said the kidnapping was arranged in telephone conversations with Vancouver Det. Sgt. Bill Porteous.

He said Brown surrendered quietly. Borgus said in a long-distance telephone interview that Brown has claimed under questioning that he left most of his $325,000 loot from the Loomis Armored Co. in a cache in Canada.

"He had only a very small amount—about $200—when he was arrested," he said. "He said he left most of the money behind but that is all he has told us. He is being very tight-lipped."

The chief said Brown's luggage—three large suitcases—disclosed another $2,000 when opened.

(Bank officials in Vancouver estimated earlier that Brown's loot—most of it in small bills—would fill about three suitcases.)

Being Held In Strict Secrecy

Chief Borgus said Brown—who has not been charged with any crime—is being held in strict secrecy at Rio police headquarters to thwart any attempts to free him.

"The only way he can get out is if he has a friend or a lawyer who will come and apply for a writ of habeas corpus," he said.

"He can't do it himself and we won't let him phone a lawyer."

Borgus admitted his department is actually working outside the law to help Vancouver police bring Brown back for trial.

Clarification Needed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forest Minister J. R. Nicholson said today there is no justification for any belief that Canada is going to ask the United States to wash out the present Columbia River development treaty. The minister said in his view all the present treaty needs is some "correction and particularly clarification."

Satellite Launched

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today the launching of the 18th of its Cosmos series of unmanned satellites.

SIU Head Under Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz today accused Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union (SIU), of balking efforts to settle a U.S.-Canadian labor dispute that has attracted White House concern. Wirtz said in a telegram to Canadian Labor Minister Allan J. MacEachern that he would meet with Hall on the Great Lakes union strike "as soon as arrangements can be completed." (See page 3.)

He told a press conference that there had been greater export volume and greater profits for Canada's multi-million dollar forest industry in the last 15 months mainly because of this country's pegged dollar.

The government would try to keep it that way. Here to officiate at Saturday's commissioning of Canada's latest destroyer-escort, HMCS Yukon, the minister also said he had hopes that President Kennedy's free trade policy would soon see an end to agitation by U.S. forest industry spokesmen for a curb on Canada's lumber exports to that country.

As for his department, it would concern itself with research, with co-ordination between the industry in various provinces and with seeking new markets.

Mr. Nicholson said heavy emphasis is going to be put into the research field through Canada's various forest research laboratories. The sod for a new building in Saanich is being turned this week.

Not Policy Says Mike

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson indicated today that one of his parliamentary secretaries was not voicing government policy when he suggested machinery for selling off Crown corporations as well as setting them up.

"That is not a matter of government policy," Mr. Pearson told David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg—North) in the Commons exchange.

Mr. Orlikow had asked which Crown corporations were to be sold off if Jack Davis (L—Coast Capilano) was enunciating government policy in his speech Thursday.

A City Honors Its Queen

Hundreds of Greater Victoria school children joined with the S. J. Willis Junior High School Band in mass singing led by H. J. Bigsby outside the Legislative Buildings today. Cadets of the three services with Guides, Brownies, Scouts and Cubs also took part in the annual IODE service commemorating Queen Victoria's birthday. (See story page 17.)

TERRORISTS HIT AIRPORT AT CARACAS

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Armed terrorists attacked Caracas' La Carlota Airport early today. At least one was killed in a gun duel with national guard sentries.

Police said at least four armed raiders were involved. Two of the three that escaped were believed to have been wounded. The car they used was found abandoned and riddled by bullets in eastern Caracas.

La Carlota Airport houses small planes of the U.S. air mission and Venezuelan artillery detachment.

Kozlov Conscious

MOSCOW (UPI) — Frol Kozlov, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's heir apparent, was reported reliably today to have regained consciousness and to have recovered from partial paralysis. The sources said there were hopes that the No. 2 man in the Soviet Communist party eventually would be restored to health. He had been stricken with a brain hemorrhage.

PROMISE: "WE'LL FINISH HIM"

Rough Insecticide Waiting for Firebug

MONTREAL (CP) — A posse of vigilantes that would put the wild west to shame is on 24-hour alert in east-end Montreal, hoping to lay hands on a firebug before police do.

The pyromaniac is blamed for 25 fires in the same 120-block area since May 6. Almost 100 families have been left homeless, and those who still have homes are out to see that they keep them.

Few pedestrians linger on the dimly-lit streets after dark, but volunteer sentries sit in window casements in every block and patrol alleys with dogs and baseball bats.

Yvon Gaudreau, an unemployed laborer lounging conspicuously in his doorway on Visitation Street Thursday night, summed up the determination of the whole neighborhood.

BASEBALL BAT READY

"I've got a little present for him (the firebug) if he shows his face around here again," he said. He reached into the darkened hallway and produced a battered baseball bat.

Gaudreau said he and his wife were driven to the street at 3 a.m. Tuesday when fire swept a row of houses adjoining theirs.

The firebug apparently had used a five-gallon can of naphtha to ignite a row of wooden sheds attached to the back of the brick dwellings. Buildings in the French-speaking area are narrowly spaced, and the sheds carry fire rapidly from one to another.

"People are scared, especially for their children," he said. "If the people catch that firebug around here, they'll finish him before the police arrive."

As he spoke, a passer-by strolled casually up to the window to report "all quiet."

The stroller, Robert Latreille, said he was taking time off from his regular job as a night-club busboy "until this is over."

"We've got about 15 ears and five or six dogs prowling around."

The volunteer canine corps boasted a varied assortment of big dogs—boxers, German shepherds and even a Dalmatian.

Boistering the volunteer watchers were city police, patrolling slowly in pairs by car and afoot, and even firemen in plainclothes.

Citizen vigilance paid off twice Wednesday night. A fire at Wolfe and Robin streets was snuffed out within 30 minutes, and a suspect was caught in the vigilantes' net.

It wasn't the firebug.

Dollar Stays Pegged Under Grit Economy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Forest Minister J. R. Nicholson said today the new Liberal government will do everything in its power to keep the level of the Canadian dollar below that of the American dollar to help Canada's export economy.

He told a press conference that there had been greater export volume and greater profits for Canada's multi-million dollar forest industry in the last 15 months mainly because of this country's pegged dollar.

The government would try to keep it that way. Here to officiate at Saturday's commissioning of Canada's latest destroyer-escort, HMCS Yukon, the minister also said he had hopes that President Kennedy's free trade policy would soon see an end to agitation by U.S. forest industry spokesmen for a curb on Canada's lumber exports to that country.

Ada Barner admits that last year she spent a day and a half in hospital, during which interlude from her post as matron of B.C. Protestant Orphanage she was visited by some of her older girls.

What Mrs. Barner chooses to leave out is the fuss these teen-agers made over her. They wept, they worried. They did and re-did her grey hair until her scalp ached worse than her gashed hand. I'm also told that when she returned to the Orphanage, she was welcomed as if fresh out of orbit.

Listen to her now, in her reception room, surrounded by the picture faces of her children past and present—the boys and girls from broken homes whom Ada Barner has mothered:

"Some have come closer to us than others, but all are loved, and missed when they leave us. We've never had a delinquent or a problem child. They come here, see how our other children behave, and by degrees fit themselves into the same pattern."

(True; but I doubt that Ada Barner recognizes a delinquent as such. What she does see is a hurt child who needs her care.)

"Our boys seem to marry the nicest girls. We have a lot of happily married girls, too. They're making good wives and mothers."

"I remember when a returned missionary came out to talk to us. He got his eye on our Jenny and never took it off her. That's Jenny in her wedding gown, cutting the cake."

(Joan will figure in a wedding picture on Mrs. Barner's wall one day. She's 19 and pretty, a high school senior. Thirteen years ago, her parents deserted her. 'All my love,' she's inscribed on the photograph on Mrs. Barner's mantel.)

"Then there was our Sandy. When he left us for a job, he felt he should repay what he got out of the home. For two years, he sent us $10 a month. A great many of our boys and girls send the home money. They say they want to help other children as they were helped."

"We've never been broke, although we've seen some very hard days. There's never been a time, though, when a child was kept out because his father or mother couldn't pay."

(Firemen, architects, carpenters, cooks, pilots, both air force and civilian. Elevator operators and electricians. One notary public, three loggers, 10 school teachers, 10 businessmen, sailors, farmers, painters and plumbers. Among the girls, teachers, lab technicians and nurses both practical and registered. Ada Barner keeps track of them, rejoicing in their successes. They come back to her, often bringing their children.)

These youngsters from secure homes call her "Granny."

"You ask me what brings children to us. There are many factors. But if I had to pick one, I'd say too-early marriages. We try to reconcile the couples. But we don't often succeed."

"Did you notice the little silver wall-paint among the pictures? That's in memory of our Willie. He was a casualty in the last war. He left his estate, which was $1,000, and his personal belongings, to what he called 'his only home.'"

(The old country trace in Ada Barner's voice isn't Scottish—I guessed wrong there—but Liverpool English. She came to Canada as a child. Her age, she insists, is her own business.)

"They're good children, and kind to one another. The girls are clothes-conscious, of course. Sometimes they switch clothes so they'll be able to go to school in a different outfit. When one of them has a special occasion coming up, they make it a point to see she looks her nicest."

Actually, Mrs. Barner's age doesn't signify. To her children, she remains ageless.

She's a remarkable woman, this mother to 500. Victoria has recognized her quality by awarding her the Good Citizen's Medal in 1955 and the Centennial Medal in 1959.

But proud though Ada Barner is of her medals, it matters more to her that her children, no matter how old or where they are, remember her with love.

'Sounds of the Trail' Make Happy Listening

By JOHN MIKA

Sixty-two riders led by their mounts. Hooves clip-clopped on pavement, hit gravelled shoulders with muffled thuds.

Leather creaked. Youths chattered. Horses sneezed. Watching cows bellowed, sheep stared and ponies whinled from their pastures.

The riders were strung out a quarter-mile behind trail boss Merle Rimmer as they left the Beaver Lake marshalling point and travelled towards their first lunch stop in the Saanich Highlands.

Four days of riding through wooded hills lay ahead—requiring a 25-mile-a-day pace over a selected route laid out by Stan Walt, chairman of a committee of the Garden City Horsemen's Club sponsoring the event. Many of the riders and horses were veterans of a similar four-day ride held as a centennial event last year, but there were quite a number of newcomers, too, mostly youths.

"No problems and no drop outs," reported the trail boss as they left.

In the van were veteran horsemen Ted Hamer, show rider Madeline Cuppage and Dr. and Mrs. C. G. MacKenzie of Duncan.

The route will take the party through the Highlands, Goldstream watershed and Leechtown areas.

Trucks hauling hay and oats for horses and grub for the riders will meet them at prepared cook camps along the way.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MAY 24, 1963—PAGE 17

CHILDREN HAIL 24th WITH SONG

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

In a warm blend of color, more than a thousand Victoria schoolchildren assembled in front of the Legislative Buildings today to commemorate Queen Victoria's birthday and to reaffirm their allegiance to Queen Elizabeth and the Commonwealth.

For the first time in many years, the colorful ceremony organized annually by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire was held on the actual anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth—May 24, 1837.

Brilliant sunshine, tempered with a light breeze, enriched the uniforms of service cadets, Scouts, Guides, Cubs Brownies and Junior pipers as the youngsters marched to their positions.

Mostly grade six

Sharp cries of command mingled with the skirl of pipes, the rattle of drums and the full brass notes of the S. J. Willis Junior High School Band mounted on the steps of the Legislature with hundreds of Grade 6 students from Greater Victoria schools.

A staccato fanfare of trumpets signalled the march of the IODE standard bearers under Municipal Standard Bearer Mrs. Harold Menzies.

The women, uniformly dressed in white and carrying standards, formed up at the Queen Victoria monument and paraded slowly up the centre path while the S. J. Willis band, conducted by Howard Denike, played "Land of Hope and Glory."

CADETS TRIM

Spread over the green lawns of the Legislature were the trimly-formed ranks of cadets of the Army, Navy and Air Force and the St. John Ambulance Brigade, with scouts, cubs, guides and brownies.

About 200 spectators watched the ceremony while civil servants looked down from office windows.

The children on the steps formed a choir conducted by H. J. Bigsby.

Prayers were offered by Rev. A. C. Hamill, representing Greater Victoria Ministerial Association, and Mrs. Peter Bell, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Victoria, IODE, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. George E. Tait of Toronto, national education secretary, IODE.

QUEEN BLESSED

"May God's richest blessing attend our sovereign queen on her official birthday," Mrs. Tait told the children.

She urged them to emulate the noble example set by Queen Elizabeth and her predecessor, Queen Victoria.

"Remember to speak the truth, be brave to do what is right, study to train the mind, keep your bodies strong and healthy and thus grow in favor with God and man."

"Be proud to be a Canadian and Canada will be proud of you."

Mrs. Tait said "it is a remarkable fact that we are assembled here today to salute an English queen who died 62 years ago."

APPRECIATION DAY

Councillor Dies on Trip To London

Coun. Gerald K. Sammon of Esquimalt, died suddenly in London, England, Tuesday night, it was learned here today.

Mr. Sammon, 53, had recently attended a convention of the Department of Veterans' Affairs Employees National Association, of which he was president, in Ottawa.

It is believed he had gone to Britain on association business at conclusion of the convention.

Cause of death was a heart attack.

Mr. Sammon, chief laboratory technician at the DVA hospital, was on holiday at the time of his death, and was to have reported for work again Tuesday morning.

He had been a member of Esquimalt Council since 1953, except for the year 1957.

DEDICATED

Reeve A. C. Wurtele today described Mr. Sammon as "one of our oldest councillors, and one who was dedicated to the affairs of his municipality."

"His death is a great loss to the council and to Esquimalt," Mr. Wurtele said.

This year Coun. Sammon was on the sports centre committee and on the parks committee, of which he was chairman.

He also was a member of the inter-municipal committee, and served on the board of St. Joseph's Hospital and the Metropolitan Board of Health.

JOINED IN 1947

A lab technician in the U.S. and Canada since 1928, Mr. Sammon joined the Department of Veterans' Affairs in 1947.

He served overseas with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps during the Second World War, attaining the rank of WO2.

Mr. Sammon is survived by the widow, Olive, and a daughter, Fern, a student nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital, at home, 104 Fernhill. Another daughter, Geraldine, lives in California.

Two-Year-Old Crimes Draw Six Months

The long arm of the law caught up with Spencer Foley in city police court today.

And he failed in his attempt to brush it aside by charging, "I'm being persecuted."

Foley was sentenced to two six-month concurrent terms for offences he committed more than two years ago.

Sharp cries of command mingled with the skirl of pipes, the rattle of drums and the full brass notes of the S. J. Willis Junior High School Band mounted on the steps of the Legislature with hundreds of Grade 6 students from Greater Victoria schools.

A staccato fanfare of trumpets signalled the march of the IODE standard bearers under Municipal Standard Bearer Mrs. Harold Menzies.

The women, uniformly dressed in white and carrying standards, formed up at the Queen Victoria monument and paraded slowly up the centre path while the S. J. Willis band, conducted by Howard Denike, played "Land of Hope and Glory."

CADETS TRIM

Spread over the green lawns of the Legislature were the trimly-formed ranks of cadets of the Army, Navy and Air Force and the St. John Ambulance Brigade, with scouts, cubs, guides and brownies.

About 200 spectators watched the ceremony while civil servants looked down from office windows.

The children on the steps formed a choir conducted by H. J. Bigsby.

Prayers were offered by Rev. A. C. Hamill, representing Greater Victoria Ministerial Association, and Mrs. Peter Bell, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Victoria, IODE, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. George E. Tait of Toronto, national education secretary, IODE.

QUEEN BLESSED

"May God's richest blessing attend our sovereign queen on her official birthday," Mrs. Tait told the children.

She urged them to emulate the noble example set by Queen Elizabeth and her predecessor, Queen Victoria.

"Remember to speak the truth, be brave to do what is right, study to train the mind, keep your bodies strong and healthy and thus grow in favor with God and man."

"Be proud to be a Canadian and Canada will be proud of you."

Mrs. Tait said "it is a remarkable fact that we are assembled here today to salute an English queen who died 62 years ago."

Rollback Predicted For Sugar

Times Business Editor

The "bubble may have burst" in the frenzied trading on the world sugar market, according to Herb Kennedy, manager of the Victoria branch of James Richardson & Sons.

Mr. Kennedy, who has been watching the futures market in sugar closely since the upward spiral began, pointed out that in the New York "world market" Thursday, contracts on future delivery of sugar went up the maximum of 50 points (25 cents) and then dropped the maximum at the close of trading.

Today the market dropped another 50 points at New York and the feeling is, Mr. Kennedy said, that it will do the same Saturday.

NO BUYERS

About 2,500 contracts were offered in both markets with no buyers taking them up.

Mr. Kennedy noted that while the basic reason for soaring sugar prices has been a world shortage, the surplus of demand over supply has undoubtedly been cut now by the record high prices which have discouraged consumption.

In addition, the futures market is probably taking into account that a new sugar crop will be coming into the world market soon and there is no indication that it will be affected, as was last year's, by bad weather.

The route will take the party through the Highlands, Goldstream watershed and Leechtown areas.

Trucks hauling hay and oats for horses and grub for the riders will meet them at prepared cook camps along the way.

Mr. Sammon, chief laboratory technician at the DVA hospital, was on holiday at the time of his death, and was to have reported for work again Tuesday morning.

He had been a member of Esquimalt Council since 1953, except for the year 1957.

"Careless smokers have caused tremendous damage to our forests," says the proclamation.

"It is essential that they be kept green."

On the evils of smoking, it adds: "Health authorities are reported to have established a link between smoking and lung cancer."

"Abstinence from smoking would contribute to the lessening of the damages . . . and the improvement of good health to the advantage of all citizens."

$2,500 Award By Ontario Won By Victoria Student

Wayne S. Fullerton, 21, of 976 Humbolt Street, has been awarded a Province of Ontario Fellowship totalling $2,500 to study psychology at Queen's University, Kingston.

He graduates from Victoria College this spring in English and Psychology.

Fellowship comes in the form of a $1,500 immediate grant, with $500 added each year for the next two years.

Mr. Fullerton leaves Victoria next week for Kingston, where he will work in the Ontario Hospital as a psychological intern until classes start in September.

He hopes to take his master's degree in clinical psychology.

Award is a particular triumph for the Victoria College's psychology department, because it means that virtually all the graduating students selected to work as departmental assistants in the last year have been awarded fellowships or assistantships at other universities.

In Winnipeg, Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin announced his provincial government would also investigate the sugar situation.

Ask The Times

Q—What are the solids in milk? R.D.

A—If you mean milk from cows, solid content varies depending on the herd. In the overall picture, milk contains 3.9 per cent fat and 8.5 per cent serum solids.

These serum solids break down into 2.5 per cent casein or the white part of milk containing minerals and proteins; 7 per cent albumin which forms part of milk's mineral content; 5.1 per cent lactose or milk sugar and .7 per cent ash.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sugar prices may stay at their high level into 1964, Forrest Rogers, president of the B.C. Sugar Refining Company, said here today.

NATO COMMUNIQUE

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The NATO ministerial communique issued today at the end of the three-day conference approves "the steps taken to organize the nuclear forces assigned or to be assigned to the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe."

As expected, the communique does not name these forces apart from three American Polaris missile submarines and British Bomber Command.

There is no mention in the communique, therefore, of assignment to the NATO nuclear force of the Canadian 200-bomber Air Division in Europe. To placate France, the communique refers to the nuclear force merely as an increase in the effectiveness of the nuclear capability already at the disposal of the alliance.

The communique also takes note of Western disquiet over Laos and concern over Cuba. It says the Berlin threat has not disappeared and urges continuation of East-West disarmament talks. It regrets Russia has shown little interest in seeking solutions to outstanding world problems.

FOUR STEPS

Steps taken in organization of the nuclear force include:

1. Assignment of British Bomber Command and three American Polaris missile submarines to the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe.

2. Establishment by the commander on his staff of a deputy responsible to him for nuclear affairs.

3. Arrangements for broader participation by officers of NATO member countries in nuclear activities in the Allied Command, Europe, and in co-ordination of operational planning at U.S. strategic Air Command Headquarters, Omaha, Neb.

Defence of Europe Certain — Stikker

OTTAWA (CP) — NATO Secretary-General Dirk Stikker called today for an end to talk about whether the United States will go to the defence of Western Europe should Russia launch an attack. It is an "absolute fact" that the U.S. would respond to an attack on Europe, he told a press conference at the end of the three-day NATO ministerial conference here.

Mr. Stikker's words could be taken as an indirect comment on fears reported held by the French government that the U.S. might not go to Europe's aid if it meant all-out war with Russia and nuclear bombardment of U.S. territory.

Replying to questions regarding Cuba, Mr. Stikker said NATO consultative machinery applies to all regions in the world where danger may arise.

TERRORISTS HIT AIRPORT AT CARACAS

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)—Armed terrorists attacked Caracas' La Carlota Airport early today. At least one was killed in a gun duel with national guard sentries.

Police said at least four armed raiders were involved. Two of the three that escaped were believed to have been wounded. The car they used was found abandoned and riddled by bullets in eastern Caracas.

La Carlota Airport houses small planes of the U.S. air mission and Venezuelan artillery detachment.

RIO POLICE GRAB LOOMIS SUSPECT

Had $2,200 On Arrest

Special to the Times

VANCOUVER—Rio de Janeiro police kidnapped Loomis guard Douglas John Brown early today and are holding him incommunicado in an attempt to send him secretly back to Canada.

The Vancouver Sun learned that Brown was arrested in a plush hotel suite at 4 a.m. Rio time, after a brief filing in Brazil's international playground.

He is being held secretly in an attempt to circumvent the law of habeas corpus until he can be placed aboard a United States-bound plane.

Rio Police Chief Gustavo Borgus said the kidnapping was arranged in telephone conversations with Vancouver Det.-Sgt. Bill Porteous.

He said Brown surrendered quietly.

Borgus said in a long-distance telephone interview that Brown has claimed under questioning that he left most of his $325,000 loot from the Loomis Armored Co. in a cache in Canada.

"He had only a very small amount—about $200—when he was arrested," he said.

"He said he left most of the money behind but that is all he has told us. He is being very tight-lipped."

The chief said Brown's luggage—three large suitcases—disclosed another $2,000 when opened.

(Bank officials in Vancouver estimated earlier that Brown's loot—most of it in small bills—would fill about three suitcases.)

Being Held In Strict Secrecy

Chief Borgus said Brown—who has not been charged with any crime—is being held in strict secrecy at Rio police headquarters to thwart any attempts to free him.

"The only way he can get out is if he has a friend or a lawyer who will come and apply for a writ of habeas corpus," he said.

"He can't do it himself and we won't let him phone a lawyer."

Borgus admitted his department is actually working outside the law to help Vancouver police bring Brown back for trial.

"It is mostly a favor we are doing them," he said.

"There is no extradition treaty between Canada and Brazil but we may have an accident and push him back on a plane."

"We are doing our best to send him back."

Brown was sleeping in his suite in the swank Miramar Palace Hotel beside Rio's famed Copacabana Beach when officers burst in on him.

Not Policy Says Mike

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson indicated today that one of his parliamentary secretaries was not voicing government policy when he suggested machinery for selling off Crown corporations as well as setting them up.

"That is not a matter of government policy," Mr. Pearson told David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) in the Commons exchange.

Mr. Orlikow had asked which Crown corporations were to be sold off if Jack Davis (L—Coast Capilano) was enunciating government policy in his speech Thursday.

Clarification Needed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Forest Minister J. R. Nicholson said today there is no justification for any belief that Canada is going to ask the United States to wash out the present Columbia River development treaty. The minister said in his view all the present treaty needs is some "correction and particularly clarification."

PROMISE: "WE'LL FINISH HIM"

Rough Insecticide Waiting for Firebug

MONTREAL (CP)—A posse of vigilantes that would put the wild west to shame is on 24-hour alert in east-end Montreal, hoping to lay hands on a firebug before police do.

The pyromaniac is blamed for 25 fires in the same 120-block area since May 6. Almost 100 families have been left homeless, and those who still have homes are out to see that they keep them.

Few pedestrians linger on the dimly-lit streets after dark, but volunteer sentries sit in window casements in every block and patrols probe the narrow, cobble brick alleys with dogs and baseball bats.

Yvon Gaudreau, an unemployed laborer lounging inconspicuously in his doorway on Visitation Street Thursday night, summed up the determination of the whole neighborhood.

"I've got a little present for him (the firebug) if he shows his face around here again," he said. He reached into the darkened hallway and produced a battered baseball bat.

Gaudreau said he and his wife were driven to the street at 3 a.m. Tuesday when fire swept a row of houses adjoining theirs.

The firebug apparently had used a five-gallon can of naphtha to ignite a row of wooden sheds attached to the back of the brick dwellings. Buildings in the French-speaking area are narrowly spaced, and the sheds carry fire rapidly from one to another.

"People are scared, especially for their children," he said.

"If the people catch that firebug around here, they'll finish him before the police arrive."

As he spoke, a passer-by strolled casually up to the window to report "all quiet."

The stroller, Robert Latreille, said he was taking time off from his regular job as a night-club busboy "until this is over."

"We've got about 15 cars and five or six dogs prowling around."

The volunteer canine corps boasted a varied assortment of big dogs—boxers, German shepherds and even a Dalmatian.

Bolstering the volunteer watchers were city police, patrolling slowly in pairs by car and afoot, and even firemen in plainclothes.

ALERTNESS PAYS

Citizen vigilance paid off twice Wednesday night. A fire at Wolfe and Robin streets was snuffed out within 30 minutes, and a suspect was caught in the vigilantes' net.

It wasn't the firebug.

Dollar Stays Pegged Under Grit Economy

VANCOUVER (CP)—Federal Forest Minister J. R. Nicholson said today the new Liberal government will do everything in its power to keep the level of the Canadian dollar below that of the American dollar to help Canada's export economy.

He told a press conference that there had been greater export volume and greater profits for Canada's multi-million dollar forest industry in the last 15 months mainly because of this country's pegged dollar.

The government would try to keep it that way.

Here to officiate at Saturday's commissioning of Canada's latest destroyer-escort, HMCS Yukon, the minister also said he had hopes that President Kennedy's free trade policy would soon see an end to agitation by U.S. forest industry spokesmen for a curb on Canada's lumber exports to that country.

As for his department, it would concern itself with research, with co-ordination between the industry in various provinces and with seeking new markets.

MASKED MEN STEAL 40 BARS OF GOLD

LONDON (AP)—Three masked men slugged a watchman and made off with 40 bars of gold worth £200,000 ($600,000).

The robbery occurred at the warehouse of a London bullion firm in the northeastern London borough of Finsbury. The thieves escaped in a car.

The raiders, dressed in overalls, pulled off the daring robbery just after noon today at Sharps, Pixley and Company which buys and sells gold for clients. The firm is one of only a handful of gold bullion brokers still operating in this country.

Outside the bullion exchange it is illegal to buy, sell, or hold

Kozlov Conscious

MOSCOW (UPI)—Frol Kozlov, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's heir apparent, was reported reliably today to have regained consciousness and to have recovered from partial paralysis. The sources said there were hopes that the No. 2 man in the Soviet Communist party eventually would be restored to health. He had been stricken with a brain hemorrhage.

Pope Shows Improvement

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John's health continued to show improvement today and he did a bit of work before beginning a nine-day spiritual retreat, Vatican officials said.

The officials said the condition of the 81-year-old Roman Catholic ruler was satisfactory and that he clearly was showing a steady gain of energy.

But the officials avoided speaking of a complete recovery. It was clear that there still was concern that he might suffer a relapse again.

SIU Head Under Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz today accused Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union (SIU), of balking efforts to settle a U.S. Canadian labor dispute that has attracted White House concern. Wirtz said in a telegram to Canadian Labor Minister Allan J. MacEachen that he would meet with Hall on the Great Lakes union strike "as soon as arrangements can be completed." (See page 3.)

Dief Irked; MPs in Dark On NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker protested in the Commons today that Canadian government attitudes on questions before the current NATO ministerial meeting are being denied to Parliament but given to the press.

Since the NATO meeting began Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker said, Parliament has received no information on the stand taken by the government on an Atlantic alliance nuclear force.

"I'm informed the press is regularly being given information by the external affairs minister (Paul Martin) and the defence minister (Paul Hellyer) and this information is not made available to Parliament," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

This was a derogation of the rights of Parliament. "Controlled news is something that should not exist as against Parliament."

Satellite Launched

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today the launching of the 18th of its Cosmos series of unmanned satellites.
